THE LOVER'S TALE

THE original Preface to 'The Lover's Tale' states that it was composed in my nineteenth year. Two only of the three parts then written were printed, when, feeling the imperfection of the poem, I withdrew it from the press. One of my friends however who, boylike, admired the boy's work, distributed among our common associates of that hour some copies of these two parts, without my knowledge, without the omissions and amendments which I had in contemplation, and marred by the many misprints of the compositor. Seeing that these two parts have of late been mercilessly pirated, and that what I had deemed scarce worthy to live is not allowed to die, may I not be pardoned if I suffer the whole poem at last to come into the light—accompanied with a reprint of the sequel—a work of my mature life—'The Golden Supper'?

May 1879.

THE LOVER'S TALE.

ARGUMENT.

JULIAN, whose cousin and foster-sister, Camilla, has been wedded to his friend and rival, Lionel, endeavours to narrate the story of his own love for her, and the strange sequel. He speaks (in Parts II. and III.) of having been haunted by visions and the sound of bells, tolling for a funeral, and at last ringing for a marriage ; but he breaks away, overcome, as he approaches the Event, and a witness to it completes the tale.

I.

ERE far away, seen from the topmost cliff,

Filling with purple gloom the vacancies

Between the tufted hills, the sloping seas Hung in mid-heaven, and half-way down rare sails, White as white clouds, floated from sky to sky.
Oh ! pleasant breast of waters, quiet bay,
Like to a quiet mind in the loud world,
Where the chafed breakers of the outer sea

Sank powerless, as anger falls aside
And withers on the breast of peaceful love ;
Thou didst receive the growth of pines that fledged
The hills that watch'd thee, as Love watcheth Love,

In thine own essence, and delight thyself
To make it wholly thine on sunny days.
Keep thou thy name of ' Lover's Bay.' See, sirs, Even now the Goddess of the Past, that takes The heart, and sometimes touches but one string That quivers, and is silent, and sometimes Sweeps suddenly all its half-moulder'd chords
To some old melody, begins to play
That air which pleased her first. I feel thy breath ;
I come, great Mistress of the ear and eye :
Thy breath is of the pinewood ; and tho' years
Have hollow'd out a deep and stormy strait Betwixt the native land of Love and me, Breathe but a little on me, and the sail
Will draw me to the rising of the sun,
The lucid chambers of the morning star,
And East of Life.

Permit me, friend, I prythee,
To pass my hand across my brows, and muse
On those dear hills, that never more will meet
The sight that throbs and aches beneath my touch,
As tho' there beat a heart in either eye ;
For when the outer lights are darken'd thus,
The memory's vision hath a keener edge.

It grows upon me now—the semicircle
Of dark-blue waters and the narrow fringe
Of curving beach—its wreaths of dripping green—
Its pale pink shells—the summerhouse aloft
That open'd on the pines with doors of glass,
A mountain nest—the pleasure-boat that rock'd,
Light-green with its own shadow, keel to keel, Upon the dappled dimplings of the wave,
That blanch'd upon its side.

O Love, O Hope !

They come, they crowd upon me all at once—
Moved from the cloud of unforgotten things,
That sometimes on the horizon of the mind Lies folded, often sweeps athwart in storm—
Flash upon flash they lighten thro' me—days
Of dewy dawning and the amber eyes
When thou and I, Camilla, thou and I Were borne about the bay or safely moor'd Beneath a low-brow'd cavern, where the tide Plash'd, sapping its worn ribs ; and all without The slowly-ridging rollers on the cliffs Clash'd, calling to each other, and thro' the arch Down those loud waters, like a setting star,
Mixt with the gorgeous west the lighthouse shone,
And silver-smiling Venus ere she fell Would often loiter in her balmy blue,
To crown it with herself.

Here, too, my love
Waver'd at anchor with me, when day hung

From his mid-dome in Heaven's airy halls ; Gleams of the water-circles as they broke,
Flicker'd like doubtful smiles about her lips, Quiver'd a flying glory on her hair,
Leapt like a passing thought across her eyes ;
And mine with one that will not pass, till earth
And heaven pass too, dwelt on my heaven, a face Most starry-fair, but kindled from within As 'twere with dawn. She was darkhair'd, dark-eyed :

Oh, such dark eyes ! a single glance of them
Will govern a whole life from birth to death, Careless of all things else, led on with light
In trances and in visions : look at them,
You lose yourself in utter ignorance ;
You cannot find their depth ; for they go back,
And farther back, and still withdraw themselves Quite into the deep soul, that evermore
Fresh springing from her fountains in the brain, Still pouring thro', floods with redundant life
Her narrow portals.

Trust me, long ago
I should have died, if it were possible
To die in gazing on that perfectness
Which I do bear within me : I had died,
But from my farthest lapse, my latest ebb,
Thine image, like a charm of light and strength
Upon the waters, push'd me back again
On these deserted sands of barren life.

Tho' from the deep vault where the heart of Hope Fell into dust, and crumbled in the dark—Forgetting how to render beautiful
Her countenance with quick and healthful blood—Thou didst not sway me upward ; could I perish While thou, a meteor of the sepulchre, Did'st swathe thyself all round Hope's quiet urn
For ever ? He, that saith it, hath o'erstept
The slippery footing of his narrow wit,
And fall'n away from judgment. Thou art light,
To which my spirit leaneth all her flowers,
And length of days, and immortality
Of thought, and freshness ever self-renew'd.
For Time and Grief abode too long with Life,
And, like all other friends i' the world, at last
They grew weary of her fellowship :
So Time and Grief did beckon unto Death,
And Death drew nigh and beat the doors of Life ;
But thou didst sit alone in the inner house,
A wakeful portress, and didst parle with Death,—
' This is a charmed dwelling which I hold ; '
So Death gave back, and would no further come.
Yet is my life nor in the present time,
Nor in the present place. To me alone,
Push'd from his chair of regal heritage,
The Present is the vassal of the Past :
So that, in that I have lived, do I live,
And cannot die, and am, in having been—
A portion of the pleasant yesterday,
Thrust forward on to-day and out of place ;

A body journeying onward, sick with toil,
The weight as if of age upon my limbs,
The grasp of hopeless grief about my heart,
And all the senses weaken'd, save in that,
Which long ago they had glean'd and garner'd up Into the granaries of memory—
The clear brow, bulwark of the precious brain, Chinked as you see, and sear'd—and all the while The light soul twines and mingles with the growths
Of vigorous early days, attracted, won,
Married, made one with, molten into all
The beautiful in Past of act or place,
And like the all-enduring camel, driven
Far from the diamond fountain by the palms,
Who toils across the middle moonlit nights,
Or when the white heats of the blinding noons Beat from the concave sand ; yet in him keeps A draught of that sweet fountain that he loves,
To stay his feet from falling, and his spirit
From bitterness of death.

Ye ask me, friends,
When I began to love. How should I tell you ?
Or from the after-fulness of my heart,
Flow back again unto my slender spring
And first of love, tho' every turn and depth Between is clearer in my life than all Its present flow. Ye know not what ye ask.
How should the broad and open flower tell What sort of bud it was, when, prest together

In its green sheath, close-lapt in silken folds,
It seemed to keep its sweetness to itself, Yet was not the less sweet for that it seemed?
For young Life knows not when young Life was born,

But takes it all for granted : neither Love, Warm in the heart, his cradle, can remember Love in the womb, but resteth satisfied,
Looking on her that brought him to the light :
Or as men know not when they fall asleep
Into delicious dreams, our other life,
So know I not when I began to love.
This is my sum of knowledge—that my love Grew with myself—say rather, was my growth
My inward sap, the hold I have on earth,
My outward circling air wherewith I breathe
Which yet upholds my life, and evermore
Is to me daily life and daily death :
For how should I have lived and not have loved
Can ye take off the sweetness from the flower,
The colour and the sweetness from the rose,
And place them by themselves ; or set apart
Their motions and their brightness from the stars
And then point out the flower or the star ?
Or build a wall betwixt my life and love,
And tell me where I am ? 'Tis even thus :
In that I live I love ; because I love
I live : whate'er is fountain to the one
Is fountain to the other ; and whene'er
Our God unknits the riddle of the one,

There is no shade or fold of mystery
Swathing the other.

Many, many years,
(For they seem many and my most of life,
And well I could have linger'd in that porch,
So unproportion'd to the dwelling-place,)
In the Maydews of childhood, opposite
The flush and dawn of youth, we lived together, Apart, alone together on those hills.

Before he saw my day my father died,
And he was happy that he saw it not ;
But I and the first daisy on his grave
From the same clay came into light at once.
As Love and I do number equal years,
So she, my love, is of an age with me.
How like each other was the birth of each !
On the same morning, almost the same hour,
Under the selfsame aspect of the stars, (Oh falsehood of all starcraft !) we were born.
How like each other was the birth of each !
The sister of my mother—she that bore Camilla close beneath her beating heart,
Which to the imprison'd spirit of the child,
With its true-touch'd pulses in the flow
And hourly visitation of the blood, Sent notes of preparation manifold,
And mellow'd echoes of the outer world—
My mother's sister, mother of my love,

Who had a twofold claim upon my heart,
One twofold mightier than the other was In giving so much beauty to the world,
And so much wealth as God had charged her with Loathing to put it from herself for ever, Left her own life with it ; and dying thus,
Crowned with her highest act the placid face
And breathless body of her good deeds past.

So were we born, so orphan'd. She was motherless
And I without a father. So from each Of those two pillars which from earth uphold
Our childhood, one had fallen away, and all
The careful burthen of our tender years Trembled upon the other. He that gave Her life, to me delightedly fulfill'd
All lovingkindnesses, all offices
Of watchful care and trembling tenderness.
He waked for both : he prayed for both : he slept Dreaming of both : nor was his love the less Because it was divided, and shot forth Boughs on each side, laden with wholesome shade Wherein we nested sleeping or awake,
And sang aloud the matin-song of life.

She was my foster-sister : on one arm
The flaxen ringlets of our infancies Wander'd, the while we rested : one soft lap Pillow'd us both : a common light of eyes

Was on us as we lay : our baby lips, Kissing one bosom, ever drew from thence
The stream of life, one stream, one life, one blood, One sustenance, which, still as thought grew large,
Still larger moulding all the house of thought,
Made all our tastes and fancies like, perhaps—
All—all but one ; and strange to me, and sweet, Sweet thro' strange years to know that whatsoe'er
Our general mother meant for me alone,
Our mutual mother dealt to both of us :
So what was earliest mine in earliest life,
I shared with her in whom myself remains.

As was our childhood, so our infancy,
They tell me, was a very miracle
Of fellow-feeling and communion.
They tell me that we would not be alone,—
We cried when we were parted ; when I wept,
Her smile lit up the rainbow on my tears, Stay'd on the cloud of sorrow ; that we loved
The sound of one-another's voices more Than the gray cuckoo loves his name, and learn'd
To lisp in tune together ; that we slept
In the same cradle always, face to face,
Heart beating time to heart, lip pressing lip.
Folding each other, breathing on each other, Dreaming together (dreaming of each other They should have added), till the morning light Sloped thro' the pines, upon the dewy pane Falling, unseal'd our eyelids, and we woke To gaze upon each other. If this be true,

At thought of which my whole soul languishes
And faints, and hath no pulse, no breath—as tho'
A man in some still garden should infuse Rich atar in the bosom of the rose,
Till, drunk with its own wine, and overfull
Of sweetness, and in smelling of itself,
It fall on its own thorns—if this be true—
And that way my wish leads me evermore
Still to believe it—'tis so sweet a thought,
Why in the utter stillness of the soul
Doth question'd memory answer not, nor tell
Of this our earliest, our closest-drawn,
Most loveliest, earthly-heavenliest harmony?

O blossom'd portal of the lonely house,
Green prelude, April promise, glad new-year
Of Being, which with earliest violets
And lavish carol of clear-throated larks Fill'd all the March of life !—I will not speak of thee,

These have not seen thee, these can never know
thee,

They cannot understand me. Pass we then
A term of eighteen years. Ye would but laugh,
If I should tell you how I hoard in thought
The faded rhymes and scraps of ancient crones, Gray relics of the nurseries of the world,
Which are as gems set in my memory,
Because she learnt them with me ; or what use
To know her father left us just before The daffodil was blown ? or how we found

The dead man cast upon the shore? All this Seems to the quiet daylight of your minds
But cloud and smoke, and in the dark of mine Is traced with flame. Move with me to the event.

There came a glorious morning, such a one
As dawns but once a season. Mercury
On such a morning would have flung himself From cloud to cloud, and swum with balanced wings

To some tall mountain : when I said to her,
' A day for Gods to stoop,' she answered, ' Ay,
And men to soar : ' for as that other gazed,
Shading his eyes till all the fiery cloud,
The prophet and the chariot and the steeds, Suck'd into oneness like a little star
Were drunk into the inmost blue, we stood,
When first we came from out the pines at noon,
With hands for eaves, uplooking and almost Waiting to see some blessed shape in heaven,
So bathed we were in brilliance. Never yet Before or after have I known the spring
Pour with such sudden deluges of light Into the middle summer ; for that day Love, rising, shook his wings, and charged the winds

With spiced May-sweets from bound to bound, and blew

Fresh fire into the sun, and from within Burst thro' the heated buds, and sent his soul
Into the songs of birds, and touch'd far-off

His mountain-altars, his high hills, with flame Milder and purer.

Thro' the rocks we wound :
The great pine shook with lonely sounds of joy
That came on the sea-wind. As mountain streams
Our bloods ran free : the sunshine seem'd to brood More warmly on the heart than on the brow.
We often paused, and, looking back, we saw
The clefts and openings in the mountains fill'd
With the blue valley and the glistening brooks,
And all the low dark groves, a land of love !
A land of promise, a land of memory,
A land of promise flowing with the milk
And honey of delicious memories !
And down to sea, and far as eye could ken,
Each way from verge to verge a Holy Land,
Still growing holier as you near'd the bay,
For there the Temple stood.

When we had reach'd
The grassy platform on some hill, I stoop'd,
I gather'd the wild herbs, and for her brows
And mine made garlands of the selfsame flower, Which she took smiling, and with my work thus Crown'd her clear forehead. Once or twice she told me
(For I remember all things) to let grow
The flowers that run poison in their veins.
She said, 'The evil flourish in the world.'

Then playfully she gave herself the lie—
'Nothing in nature is unbeautiful ;
So, brother, pluck, and spare not.' So I wove Ev'n the dull-blooded poppy-stem, 'whose flower, Hued with the scarlet of a fierce sunrise,
Like to the wild youth of an evil prince,
Is without sweetness, but who crowns himself
Above the secret poisons of his heart
In his old age.' A graceful thought of hers Grav'n on my fancy ! And oh, how like a nymph
A stately mountain nymph she look'd ! how native Unto the hills she trod on ! While I gazed, My coronal slowly disentwined itself
And fell between us both ; tho' while I gazed My spirit leap'd as with those thrills of bliss
That strike across the soul in prayer, and show us That we are surely heard. Methought a light Burst from the garland I had wov'n, and stood A solid glory on her bright black hair :
A light methought broke from her dark, dark eyes,
And shot itself into the singing winds ;
A mystic light flash'd ev'n from her white robe
As from a glass in the sun, and fell about My footsteps on the mountains.

Last we came

To what our people call 'The Hill of Woe.'
A bridge is there, that, look'd at from beneath Seems but a cobweb filament to link
The yawning of an earthquake-cloven chasm.

And thence one night, when all the winds were loud,

A woeful man (for so the story went)
Had thrust his wife and child and dash'd himself Into the dizzy depth below. Below, Fierce in the strength of far descent, a stream Flies with a shatter'd foam along the chasm.

The path was perilous, loosely strown with crags :
We mounted slowly ; yet to both there came
The joy of life in steepness overcome,
And victories of ascent, and looking down
On all that had look'd down on us ; and joy
In breathing nearer heaven ; and joy to me,
High over all the azure-circled earth,
To breathe with her as if in heaven itself ;
And more than joy that I to her became Her guardian and her angel, raising her Still higher, past all peril, until she saw Beneath her feet the region far away,
Beyond the nearest mountain's bosky brows,
Burst into open prospect—heath and hill,
And hollow lined and wooded to the lips,
And steep-down walls of battlemented rock Gilded with broom, or shatter'd into spires,
And glory of broad waters interfused,
Whence rose as it were breath and steam of gold,
And over all the great wood rioting
And climbing, streak'd or starr'd at intervals With falling brook or blossom'd bush—and last,
Framing the mighty landscape to the west,

A purple range of mountain-cones, between Whose interspaces gush'd in blinding bursts
The incorporate blaze of sun and sea.

At length
Descending from the point and standing both,
There on the tremulous bridge, that from beneath Had seem'd a gossamer filament up in air,
We paused amid the splendour. All the west
And ev'n unto the middle south was ribb'd
And barr'd with bloom on bloom. The sun below, Held for a space 'twixt cloud and wave, shower'd down

Rays of a mighty circle, weaving over
That various wilderness a tissue of light Unparallel'd. On the other side, the moon, Half-melted into thin blue air, stood still,
And pale and fibrous as a wither'd leaf,
Nor yet endured in presence of His eyes
To indue his lustre ; most unloverlike,
Since in his absence full of light and joy,
And giving light to others. But this most,
Next to her presence whom I loved so well, Spoke loudly even into my inmost heart
As to my outward hearing : the loud stream, Forth issuing from his portals in the crag (A visible link unto the home of my heart), Ran amber toward the west, and nigh the sea Parting my own loved mountains was received, Shorn of its strength, into the sympathy

Of that small bay, which out to open main Glow'd intermingling close beneath the sun.
Spirit of Love ! that little hour was bound Shut in from Time, and dedicate to thee :
Thy fires from heaven had touch'd it, and the earth
They fell on became hallow'd evermore.

We turn'd : our eyes met : hers were bright, and mine
Were dim with floating tears, that shot the sunset
In lightnings round me ; and my name was borne Upon her breath. Henceforth my name has been A hallow'd memory like the names of old,
A center'd, glory-circled memory,
And a peculiar treasure, brooking not Exchange or currency : and in that hour
A hope flow'd round me, like a golden mist Charm'd amid eddies of melodious airs,
A moment, ere the onward whirlwind shatter it, Waver'd and floated—which was less than Hope,
Because it lack'd the power of perfect Hope ;
But which was more and higher than all Hope,
Because all other Hope had lower aim ;
Even that this name to which her gracious lips
Did lend such gentle utterance, this one name,
In some obscure hereafter, might inwreathe (How lovelier, nobler then !) her life, her love, With my life, love, soul, spirit, and heart and strength.

‘ Brother,’ she said, ‘ let this be call'd henceforth

The Hill of Hope ;' and I replied, 'O sister, My will is one with thine ; the Hill of Hope.'
Nevertheless, we did not change the name.

I did not speak : I could not speak my love.
Love lieth deep : Love dwells not in lip-depths.
Love wraps his wings on either side the heart, Constraining it with kisses close and warm, Absorbing all the incense of sweet thoughts
So that they pass not to the shrine of sound.
Else had the life of that delighted hour Drunk in the largeness of the utterance
Of Love ; but how should Earthly measure mete
The Heavenly-unmeasured or unlimited Love,
Who scarce can tune his high majestic sense Unto the thundersong that wheels the spheres, Scarce living in the Æolian harmony,
And flowing odour of the spacious air,
Scarce housed within the circle of this Earth,
Be cabin'd up in words and syllables,
Which pass with that which breathes them?
Sooner Earth
Might go round Heaven, and the strait girth Time
Inswathe the fulness of Eternity,
Than language grasp the infinite of Love.

O day which did enwomb that happy hour,
Thou art blessed in the years, divinest day !
O Genius of that hour which dost uphold

Thy coronal of glory like a God, Amid thy melancholy mates far-seen,
Who walk before thee, ever turning round
To gaze upon thee till their eyes are dim
With dwelling on the light and depth of thine, Thy name is ever worshipp'd among hours !
Had I died then, I had not seem'd to die,
For bliss stood round me like the light of Heaven,—

Had I died then, I had not known the death ;
Yea had the Power from whose right hand the light
Of Life issueth, and from whose left hand floweth
The Shadow of Death, perennial effluences, Whereof to all that draw the wholesome air, Somewhile the one must overflow the other ;
Then had he stemm'd my day with night, and driven

My current to the fountain whence it sprang,— Even his own abiding excellence—
On me, methinks, that shock of gloom had fall'n Unfelt, and in this glory I had merged
The other, like the sun I gazed upon,
Which seeming for the moment due to death,
And dipping his head low beneath the verge,
Yet bearing round about him his own day,
In confidence of unabated strength, Steppeth from Heaven to Heaven, from light to light,
And holdeth his undimmed forehead far
Into a clearer zenith, pure of cloud.

We trod the shadow of the downward hill ;
We past from light to dark. On the other side
Is scoop'd a cavern and a mountain hall, Which none have fathom'd. If you go far in (The country people rumour) you may hear
The moaning of the woman and the child, Shut in the secret chambers of the rock.
I too have heard a sound—perchance of streams Running far on within its inmost halls,
The home of darkness ; but the cavern-mouth,
Half overtrailed with a wanton weed,
Gives birth to a brawling brook, that passing lightly Adown a natural stair of tangled roots,
Is presently received in a sweet grave
Of eglantines, a place of burial
Far lovelier than its cradle ; for unseen,
But taken with the sweetness of the place,
It makes a constant bubbling melody
That drowns the nearer echoes. Lower down Spreads out a little lake, that, flooding, leaves Low banks of yellow sand ; and from the woods
That belt it rise three dark, tall cypresses,— Three cypresses, symbols of mortal woe,
That men plant over graves.

Hither we came,
And sitting down upon the golden moss,
Held converse sweet and low—low converse sweet,
In which our voices bore least part. The wind Told a lovetale beside us, how he woo'd

The waters, and the waters answering lisp'd
To kisses of the wind, that, sick with love, Fainted at intervals, and grew again
To utterance of passion. Ye cannot shape Fancy so fair as is this memory.
Methought all excellence that ever was Had drawn herself from many thousand years,
And all the separate Edens of this earth,
To centre in this place and time. I listen'd,
And her words stole with most prevailing sweetness

Into my heart, as thronging fancies come To boys and girls when summer days are new,
And soul and heart and body are all at ease:
What marvel my Camilla told me all?
It was so happy an hour, so sweet a place,
And I was as the brother of her blood,
And by that name I moved upon her breath;
Dear name, which had too much of nearness in it And heralded the distance of this time!
At first her voice was very sweet and low.
As if she were afraid of utterance;
But in the onward current of her speech,
(As echoes of the hollow-banked brooks Are fashion'd by the channel which they keep),
Her words did of their meaning borrow sound,
Her cheek did catch the colour of her words.
I heard and trembled, yet I could but hear;
My heart paused—my raised eyelids would not fall,
But still I kept my eyes upon the sky.

I seem'd the only part of Time stood still,
And saw the motion of all other things ;
While her words, syllable by syllable,
Like water, drop by drop, upon my ear
Fell ; and I wish'd, yet wish'd her not to speak ;
But she spake on, for I did name no wish.
What marvel my Camilla told me all
Her maiden dignities of Hope and Love—'Perchance,' she said, 'return'd.' Even then the stars
Did tremble in their stations as I gazed ;
But she spake on, for I did name no wish,
No wish—no hope. Hope was not wholly dead,
But breathing hard at the approach of Death,— Camilla, my Camilla, who was mine
No longer in the dearest sense of mine—
For all the secret of her inmost heart,
And all the maiden empire of her mind,
Lay like a map before me, and I saw
There, where I hoped myself to reign as king,
There, where that day I crown'd myself as king,
There in my realm and even on my throne,
Another ! Then it seem'd as tho' a link
Of some tight chain within my inmost frame Was riven in twain! that life I heeded not Flow'd from me, and the darkness of the grave,
The darkness of the grave and utter night,
I did swallow up my vision ; at her feet,
Even the feet of her I loved, I fell,
Smit with exceeding sorrow unto Death.

Then had the earth beneath me yawning cloven
With such a sound as when an iceberg splits
From cope to base—had Heaven from all her doors,
With all her golden thresholds clashing, roll'd
Her heaviest thunder—I had lain as dead, Mute, blind and motionless as then I lay;
Dead, for henceforth there was no life for me!
Mute, for henceforth what use were words to me!
Blind, for the day was as the night to me!
The night to me was kinder than the day;
The night in pity took away my day,
Because my grief as yet was newly born
Of eyes too weak to look upon the light;
And thro' the hasty notice of the ear Frail Life was startled from the tender love
Of him she brooded over. Would I had lain Until the plaited ivy-tress had wound Round my worn limbs, and the wild briar had driven
Its knotted thorns thro' my unpaining brows, Leaning its roses on my faded eyes.
The wind had blown above me, and the rain
Had fall'n upon me, and the gilded snake
Had nestled in this bosom-throne of Love,
But I had been at rest for evermore.

Long time entrancement held me. All too soon Life (like a wanton too-officious friend,
Who will not hear denial, vain and rude
With proffer of unwished-for services)

Entering all the avenues of sense
Past thro' into his citadel, the brain,
With hated warmth of apprehensiveness.
And first the chillness of the sprinkled brook Smote on my brows, and then I seem'd to hear
Its murmur, as the drowning seaman hears,
Who with his head below the surface dropt Listens the muffled booming indistinct
Of the confused floods, and dimly knows His head shall rise no more : and then came in The white light of the weary moon above, Diffused and molten into flaky cloud.
Was my sight drunk that it did shape to me
Him who should own that name ? Were it not well If so be that the echo of that name Ringing within the fancy had updrawn
A fashion and a phantasm of the form
It should attach to ? Phantom !—had the ghastliest That ever lusted for a body, sucking
The foul steam of the grave to thicken by it, There in the shuddering moonlight brought its face

And what it has for eyes as close to mine
As he did—better that than his, than he
The friend, the neighbour, Lionel, the beloved,
The loved, the lover, the happy Lionel,
The low-voiced, tender-spirited Lionel,
All joy, to whom my agony was a joy.
O how her choice did leap forth from his eyes !
O how her love did clothe itself in smiles

About his lips ! and—not one moment's grace—
Then when the effect weigh'd seas upon my head
To come my way ! to twit me with the cause !

Was not the land as free thro' all her ways
To him as me ? Was not his wont to walk Between the going light and growing night ?
Had I not learnt my loss before he came ?
Could that be more because he came my way ?
Why should he not come my way if he would ?
And yet to-night, to-night—when all my wealth Flash'd from me in a moment and I fell Beggar'd for ever—why should he come my way Robed in those robes of light I must not wear,
With that great crown of beams about his brows—
Come like an angel to a damned soul,
To tell him of the bliss he had with God—
Come like a careless and a greedy heir That scarce can wait the reading of the will Before he takes possession ? Was mine a mood To be invaded rudely, and not rather A sacred, secret, unapproached woe, Unspeakable ? I was shut up with Grief ;
She took the body of my past delight,
Narded and swathed and balm'd it for herself,
And laid it in a sepulchre of rock Never to rise again. I was led mute Into her temple like a sacrifice ;
I was the High Priest in her holiest place,
Not to be loudly broken in upon.

Oh friend, thoughts deep and heavy as these well-nigh

O'erbore the limits of my brain : but he Bent o'er me, and my neck his arm upstay'd.
I thought it was an adder's fold, and once
I strove to disengage myself, but fail'd,
Being so feeble : she bent above me, too ;
Wan was her cheek ; for whatsoe'er of blight Lives in the dewy touch of pity had made
The red rose there a pale one—and her eyes—
I saw the moonlight glitter on their tears—
And some few drops of that distressful rain Fell on my face, and her long ringlets moved, Drooping and beaten by the breeze, and brush'd
My fallen forehead in their to and fro,
For in the sudden anguish of her heart Loosed from their simple thrall they had flow'd abroad,

And floated on and parted round her neck, Mantling her form halfway. She, when I woke,
Something she ask'd, I know not what, and ask'd, Unanswer'd, since I spake not ; for the sound
Of that dear voice so musically low,
And now first heard with any sense of pain,
As it had taken life away before,
Choked all the syllables, that strove to rise From my full heart.

The blissful lover, too,
From his great hoard of happiness distill'd

Some drops of solace ; like a vain rich man,
That, having always prosper'd in the world,
Folding his hands, deals comfortable words
To hearts wounded for ever ; yet, in truth,
Fair speech was his and delicate of phrase,
Falling in whispers on the sense, address'd
More to the inward than the outward ear,
As rain of the midsummer midnight soft,
Scarce-heard, recalling fragrance and the green
Of the dead spring : but mine was wholly dead,
No bud, no leaf, no flower, no fruit for me.
Yet who had done, or who had suffer'd wrong ?
And why was I to darken their pure love,
If, as I found, they two did love each other,
Because my own was darken'd ? Why was I
To cross between their happy star and them ?
To stand a shadow by their shining doors,
And vex them with my darkness ? Did I love her ?
Ye know that I did love her ; to this present
My full-orb'd love has waned not. Did I love her,
And could I look upon her tearful eyes ?
What had she done to weep ? Why should she weep ?
O innocent of spirit—let my heart
Break rather—whom the gentlest airs of Heaven Should kiss with an unwonted gentleness.
Her love did murder mine ? What then ? She deem'd
I wore a brother's mind : she call'd me brother :
She told me all her love : she shall not weep.

The brightness of a burning thought, awhile
In battle with the glooms of my dark will,
Moonlike emerged, and to itself lit up
There on the depth of an unfathom'd woe Reflex of action. Starting up at once,
As from a dismal dream of my own death,
I, for I loved her, lost my love in Love ;
I, for I loved her, graspt the hand she lov'd.
And laid it in her own, and sent my cry
Thro' the blank night to Him who loving made The happy and the unhappy love, that He Would hold the hand of blessing over them, Lionel, the happy, and her, and her, his bride !
Let them so love that men and boys may say,
'Lo ! how they love each other !' till their love Shall ripen to a proverb, unto all Known, when their faces are forgot in the land—
One golden dream of love, from which may death Awake them with heaven's music in a life
More living to some happier happiness, Swallowing its precedent in victory.
And as for me, Camilla, as for me,—
The dew of tears is an unwholesome dew,
They wili but sicken the sick plant the more.
Deem that I love thee but as brothers do,
So shalt thou love me still as sisters do ;
Or if thou dream aught farther, dream but how I could have loved thee, had there been none else
To love as lovers, loved again by thee.

Or this, or somewhat like to this, I spake,
When I beheld her weep so ruefully ;
For sure my love should ne'er indue the front
And mask of Hate, who lives on others' moans.
Shall Love pledge Hatred in her bitter draughts,
And batten on her poisons? Love forbid !
Love passeth not the threshold of cold Hate,
And Hate is strange beneath the roof of Love.
O Love, if thou be'st Love, dry up these tears Shed for the love of Love ; for tho' mine image,
The subject of thy power, be cold in her,
Yet, like cold snow, it melteth in the source Of these sad tears, and feeds their downward flow.
So Love, arraign'd to judgment and to death,
Received unto himself a part of blame,
Being guiltless, as an innocent prisoner,
Who, when the woful sentence hath been past,
And all the clearness of his fame hath gone
Beneath the shadow of the curse of man,
First falls asleep in swoon, wherefrom awaked,
And looking round upon his tearful friends,
Forthwith and in his agony conceives
A shameful sense as of a cleaving crime—
For whence without some guilt should such grief be ?

So died that hour, and fell into the abysm
Of forms outworn, but not to me outworn,
Who never hail'd another—was there one ?
There might be one—one other, worth the life

That made it sensible. So that hour died Like odour rapt into the winged wind Borne into alien lands and far away.

There be some hearts so airily built, that they,
They—when their love is wreck'd—if Love can wreck—

On that sharp ridge of utmost doom ride highly Above the perilous seas of Change and Chance ;
Nay, more, hold out the lights of cheerfulness ;
As the tall ship, that many a dreary year
Knit to some dismal sandbank far at sea,
All thro' the livelong hours of utter dark, Showers slanting light upon the dolorous wave.
For me—what light, what gleam on those black ways

Where Love could walk with banish'd Hope no more ?

It was ill-done to part you, Sisters fair ;
Love's arms were wreath'd about the neck of Hope,
And Hope kiss'd Love, and Love drew in her breath

In that close kiss, and drank her whisper'd tales.
They said that Love would die when Hope was gone,

And Love mourn'd long, and sorrow'd after Hope ;
At last she sought out Memory, and they trod
The same old paths were Love had walk'd with Hope,
And Memory fed the soul of Love with tears.

FROM that time forth I would not see her more ;
But many weary moons I lived alone—
Alone, and in the heart of the great forest.
Sometimes upon the hills beside the sea
All day I watch'd the floating isles of shade,
And sometimes on the shore, upon the sands Insensibly I drew her name, until The meaning of the letters shot into My brain ; anon the wanton billow wash'd
Them over, till they faded like my love.
The hollow caverns heard me—the black brooks
Of the midforest heard me—the soft winds, Laden with thistledown and seeds of flowers,
Paused in their course to hear me, for my voice
Was all of thee : the merry linnet knew me,
The squirrel knew me, and the dragonfly Shot by me like a flash of purple fire.
The rough briar tore my bleeding palms ; the hemlock,
Brow-high, did strike my forehead as I past ;
Yet trod I not the wildflower in my path,
Nor bruised the wildbird's egg.

Was this the end ?

Why grew we then together in one plot ?

Why fed we from one fountain ? drew one sun ?

Why were our mothers' branches of one stem ?
Why were we one in all things, save in that Where to have been one had been the cope and crown
Of all I hoped and fear'd ?—if that same nearness Were father to this distance, and that one Vauntcourier to this double ? if Affection Living slew Love, and Sympathy hew'd out
The bosom-sepulchre of Sympathy ?

Chiefly I sought the cavern and the hill Where last we roam'd together, for the sound Of the loud stream was pleasant, and the wind Came wooingly with woodbine smells. Sometimes
All day I sat within the cavern-mouth, Fixing my eyes on those three cypress-cones
That spired above the wood ; and with mad hand Tearing the bright leaves of the ivy-screen,
I cast them in the noisy brook beneath,
And watch'd them till they vanish'd from my sight
Beneath the bower of wreathed eglantines :
And all the fragments of the living rock (Huge blocks, which some old trembling of the world
Had loosen'd from the mountain, till they fell Half-digging their own graves) these in my agony Did I make bare of all the golden moss, Wherewith the dashing runnel in the spring
Had liveried them all over. In my brain
The spirit seem'd to flag from thought to thought

As moonlight wandering thro' a mist : my blood Crept like marsh drains thro' all my languid limbs ;
The motions of my heart seem'd far within me, Unfrequent, low, as tho' it told its pulses ;
And yet it shook me, that my frame would shudder.

As if 'twere drawn asunder by the rack.
But over the deep graves of Hope and Fear,
And all the broken palaces of the Past,
Brooded one master-passion evermore,
Like to a low-hung and a fiery sky
Above some fair metropolis, earth-shock'd, — Hung round with ragged rims and burning folds, — Embathing all with wild and woful hues,
Great hills of ruins, and collapséd masses
Of thundershaken columns indistinct,
And fused together in the tyrannous light—
Ruins, the ruin of all my life and me !

Sometimes I thought Camilla was no more,
Some one had told me she was dead, and ask'd
If I would see her burial : then I seem'd
To rise, and through the forest-shadow borne With more than mortal swiftness, I ran down
The steepy sea-bank, till I came upon
The rear of a procession, curving round
The silver-sheeted bay : in front of which Six stately virgins, all in white, upbare
A broad earth-sweeping pall of whitest lawn,

Wreathed round the bier with garlands : in the distance,

From out the yellow woods upon the hill
Look'd forth the summit and the pinnacles
Of a gray steeple—thence at intervals
A low bell tolling. All the pageantry, Save those six virgins which upheld the bier,
Were stoled from head to foot in flowing black ;
One walk'd abreast with me, and veil'd his brow,
And he was loud in weeping and in praise
Of her, we follow'd : a strong sympathy
Shook all my soul : I flung myself upon him
In tears and cries : I told him all my love,
How I had loved her from the first ; whereat He shrank and howl'd, and from his brow drew back

His hand to push me from him ; and the face,
The very face and form of Lionel Flash'd thro' my eyes into my innermost brain,
And at his feet I seemed to faint and fall,
To fall and die away. I could not rise Albeit I strove to follow. They past on,
The lordly Phantasms ! in their floating folds They past and were no more : but I had fallen Prone by the dashing runnel on the grass.

Always the inaudible invisible thought,
Artificer and subject, lord and slave,
Shaped by the audible and visible,
Moulded the audible and visible ;

All crisped sounds of wave and leaf and wind, Flatter'd the fancy of my fading brain ;
The cloud-pavilion'd element, the wood,
The mountain, the three cypresses, the cave,
Storm, sunset, glows and glories of the moon
Below black firs, when silent-creeping winds Laid the long night in silver streaks and bars,
Were wrought into the tissue of my dream :
The moanings in the forest, the loud brook, Cries of the partridge like a rusty key Turn'd in a lock, owl-whoop and dorchawk-whirr Awoke me not, but were a part of sleep,
And voices in the distance calling to me
And in my vision bidding me dream on,
Like sounds without the twilight realm of dreams,
Which wander round the bases of the hills,
And murmur at the low-dropt eaves of sleep,
Half-entering the portals. Oftentimes
The vision had fair prelude, in the end Opening on darkness, stately vestibules
To caves and shows of Death : whether the mind,
With some revenge—even to itself unknown,—
Made strange division of its suffering With her, whom to have suffering view'd had been Extremest pain ; or that the clear-eyed Spirit, Being blunted in the Present, grew at length Prophetical and prescient of whate'er
The Future had in store : or that which most Enchains belief, the sorrow of my spirit Was of so wide a compass it took in

All I had loved, and my dull agony, Ideally to her transferr'd, became Anguish intolerable.

The day waned ;

Alone I sat with her : about my brow
Her warm breath floated in the utterance
Of silver-chorded tones : her lips were sunder'd
With smiles of tranquil bliss, which broke in light Like morning from her eyes—her eloquent eyes, (As I have seen them many a hundred times) Filled all with pure clear fire, thro' mine down rain'd

Their spirit-searching splendours. As a vision Unto a haggard prisoner, iron-stay'd .
In damp and dismal dungeons underground, Confined on points of faith, when strength is shock'd

With torment, and expectancy of worse
Upon the morrow, thro' the ragged walls,
All unawares before his half-shut eyes,
Comes in upon him in the dead of night,
And with the excess of sweetness and of awe,
Makes the heart tremble, and the sight run over Upon his steely gyves ; so those fair eyes Shone on my darkness, forms which ever stood Within the magic cirque of memory, Invisible but deathless, waiting still
The edict of the will to reassume
The semblance of those rare realities

Of which they were the mirrors. Now the light Which was their life, burst through the cloud of thought Keen, irrepressible.

It was a room
Within the summer-house of which I spake, Hung round with paintings of the sea, and one
A vessel in mid-ocean, her heaved prow Clambering, the mast bent and the ravin wind
In her sail roaring. From the outer day, Betwixt the close-set ivies came a broad
And solid beam of isolated light, Crowded with driving atomies, and fell Slanting upon that picture, from prime youth Well-known well-loved. She drew it long ago Forthgazing on the waste and open sea,
One morning when the upblown billow ran Shoreward beneath red clouds, and I had pour'd Into the shadowing pencil's naked forms Colour and life : it was a bond and seal
Of friendship, spoken of with tearful smiles ;
A monument of childhood and of love ;
The poesy of childhood ; my lost love Symbol'd in storm. We gazed on it together In mute and glad remembrance, and each heart Grew closer to the other, and the eye
Was riveted and charm-bound, gazing like
The Indian on a still-eyed snake, low-couch'd—
A beauty which is death ; when all at once

That painted vessel, as with inner life,
Began to heave upon that painted sea ;
An earthquake, my loud heart-beats, made the ground

Reel under us, and all at once, soul, life
And breath and motion, past and flow'd away
To those unreal billows : round and round
A whirlwind caught and bore us ; mighty gyres Rapid and vast, of hissing spray wind-driven Far thro' the dizzy dark. Aloud she shriek'd ;
My heart was cloven with pain ; I wound my arms
About her : we whirl'd giddily ; the wind Sung ; but I clasped her without fear : her weight Shrank in my grasp, and over my dim eyes,
And parted lips which drank her breath, down-hung

The jaws of Death : I, groaning, from me flung Her empty phantom : all the sway and whirl
Of the storm dropt to windless calm, and I Down welter'd thro' the dark ever and ever.

III.

I CAME one day and sat among the stones Strewn in the entry of the moaning cave ;
A morning air, sweet after rain, ran over
The rippling levels of the lake, and blew Coolness and moisture and all smells of bud
And foliage from the dark and dripping woods
Upon my fever'd brows that shook and throb'd From temple unto temple. To what height
The day had grown I know not. Then came on me
The hollow tolling of the bell, and all The vision of the bier. As heretofore
I walk'd behind with one who veil'd his brow.
Methought by slow degrees the sullen bell Toll'd quicker, and the breakers on the shore Sloped into louder surf : those that went with me,
And those that held the bier before my face,
Moved with one spirit round about the bay, Trode swifter steps ; and while I walk'd with these In marvel at that gradual change, I thought Four bells instead of one began to ring,
Four merry bells, four merry marriage-bells,
In clanging cadence jangling peal on peal—
A long loud clash of rapid marriage-bells.
Then those who led the van, and those in rear, Rush'd into dance, and like wild Bacchanals Fled onward to the steeple in the woods :

I, too, was borne along and felt the blast Beat on my heated eyelids : all at once
The front rank made a sudden halt ; the bells Lapsed into frightful stillness ; the surge fell From thunder into whispers ; those six maids
With shrieks and ringing laughter on the sand Threw down the bier ; the woods upon the hill Waved with a sudden gust that sweeping down Took the edges of the pall, and blew it far Until it hung, a little silver cloud Over the sounding seas : I turned : my heart Shrank in me, like a snowflake in the hand, Waiting to see the settled countenance
Of her I loved, adorn'd with fading flowers.
But she from out her death-like chrysalis,
She from her bier, as into fresher life,
My sister, and my cousin, and my love,
Leapt lightly clad in bridal white—her hair Studded with one rich Provence rose—a light
Of smiling welcome round her lips—her eyes
And cheeks as bright as when she climb'd the hill.
One hand she reach'd to those that came behind,
And while I mused nor yet endured to take So rich a prize, the man who stood with me Stept gaily forward, throwing down his robes,
And claspt her hand in his : again the bells Jangled and clang'd : again the stormy surf Crash'd in the shingle ; and the whirling rout Led by those two rush'd into dance, and fled

Wind-footed to the steeple in the woods,
Till they were swallow'd in the leafy bowers,
And I stood sole beside the vacant bier.

There, there, my latest vision—then the event !

IV.

THE GOLDEN SUPPER.

(Another speaks.)

HE flies the event : he leaves the event to me :
Poor Julian—how he rush'd away ; the bells,
Those marriage-bells, echoing in ear and heart—
But cast a parting glance at me, you saw,
As who should say 'Continue.' Well, he had One golden hour—of triumph shall I say ?
Solace at least—before he left his home.

Would you had see him in that hour of his !
He moved thro' all of it majestically—Restrain'd himself quite to the close—but now—

Whether they were his lady's marriage-bells,
Or prophets of them in his fantasy,
I never ask'd : but Lionel and the girl
Were wedded, and our Julian came again
Back to his mother's house among the pines.
But these, their gloom, the mountains and the Bay,
The whole land weigh'd him down as Ætna does
The Giant of Mythology ; he would go,
Would leave the land for ever, and had gone Surely, but for a whisper, 'Go not yet,'
Some warning—sent divinely—as it seem'd

By that which follow'd—but of this I deem As of the visions that he told—the event Glanced back upon them in his after life,
And partly made them—tho' he knew it not.

And thus he stay'd and would not look at her—
No not for months : but, when the eleventh moon
After their marriage lit the lover's Bay, Heard yet once more the tolling bell, and said,
Would you could toll me out of life, but found—
All softly as his mother broke it to him—
A crueller reason than a crazy ear,
For that low knell tolling his lady dead—
Dead—and had lain three days without a pulse :
All that look'd on her had pronounced her dead.
And so they bore her (for in Julian's land They never nail a dumb head up in elm), Bore her free-faced to the free airs of heaven,
And laid her in the vault of her own kin.

What did he then? not die : he is here and hale—
Not plunge headforemost from the mountain there,
And leave the name of Lover's Leap : not he :
He knew the meaning of the whisper now,
Thought that he knew it. 'This, I stay'd for this;
O love, I have not seen you for so long.
Now, now, will I go down into the grave,
I will be all alone with all I love,
And kiss her on the lips. She is his no more :

The dead returns to me, and I go down To kiss the dead.'

The fancy stirr'd him so
He rose and went, and entering the dim vault,
And, making there a sudden light, beheld All round about him that which all will be.
The light was but a flash, and went again.
Then at the far end of the vault he saw His lady with the moonlight on her face ;
Her breast as in a shadow-prison, bars
Of black and bands of silver, which the moon Struck from an open grating overhead
High in the wall, and all the rest of her Drown'd in the gloom and horror of the vault.

' It was my wish,' he said, ' to pass, to sleep,
To rest, to be with her—till the great day Peal'd on us with that music which rights all,
And raised us hand in hand.' And kneeling there Down in the dreadful dust that once was man, Dust, as he said, that once was loving hearts,
Hearts that had beat with such a love as mine—
Not such as mine, no, nor for such as her —
He softly put his arm about her neck
And kissed her more than once, till helpless death
And silence made him bold—nay, but I wrong him,
He revered his dear lady even in death ;
But, placing his true hand upon her heart,
' O, you warm heart,' he moan'd, ' not even death

Can chill you all at once ! ' then starting, thought His dreams had come again. ' Do I wake or sleep ?
Or am I made immortal, or my love Mortal once more ? ' It beat—the heart—it beat :
Faint—but it beat: at which his own began
To pulse with such a vehemence that it drown'd
The feebler motion underneath his hand.
But when at last his doubts were satisfied,
He raised her softly from the sepulchre,
And, wrapping her all over with the cloak
He came in, and now striding fast, and now Sitting awhile to rest, but evermore Holding his golden burthen in his arms,
So bore her thro' the solitary land
Back to the mother's house where she was born.

There the good mother's kindly ministering,
With half a night's appliances, recall'd
Her fluttering life : she rais'd an eye that ask'd
' Where ? ' till the things familiar to her youth Had made a silent answer : then she spoke ' Here ! and how came I here ? ' and learning it (They told her somewhat rashly as I think)
At once began to wander and to wail,
' Ay, but you know that you must give me back :
Send ! bid him come ; ' but Lionel was away—Stung by his loss had vanish'd, none knew where.
' He casts me out,' she wept, ' and goes '—a wail
That seeming something, yet was nothing, born
Not from believing mind, but shatter'd nerve,

Yet haunting Julian, as her own reproof
At some precipitance in her burial.
Then, when her own true spirit had return'd,
'O yes, and you,' she said, 'and none but you.
For you have given me life and love again,
And none but you yourself shall tell him of it,
And you shall give me back when he returns.'
'Stay then a little,' answered Julian, 'here,
And keep yourself, none knowing, to yourself ;
And I will do your will. I may not stay,
No, not an hour ; but send me notice of him
When he returns, and then will I return,
And I will make a solemn offering of you To him you love.' And faintly she replied,
'And I will do your will, and none shall know.'

Not know ? with such a secret to be known.
But all their house was old and loved them both,
And all the house had known the loves of both ;
Had died almost to serve them any way,
And all the land was waste and solitary :
And then he rode away ; but after this,
An hour or two, Camilla's travail came Upon her, and that day a boy was born, Heir of his face and land, to Lionel.

And thus our lonely lover rode away,
And pausing at a hostel in a marsh,
There fever seized upon him : myself was then Travelling that land, and meant to rest an hour ;

And sitting down to such a base repast,
It makes me angry yet to speak of it—
I heard a groaning overhead, and climb'd
The moulder'd stairs (for everything was vile),
And in a loft, with none to wait on him,
Found, as it seem'd, a skeleton alone,
Raving of dead men's dust and beating hearts.

A dismal hostel in a dismal land,
A flat malarian world of reed and rush !
But there from fever and my care of him
Sprang up a friendship that may help us yet.
For while we roam'd along the dreary coast,
And waited for her message, piece by piece
I learnt the drearier story of his life ;
And, tho' he loved and honour'd Lionel,
Found that the sudden wail his lady made Dwelt in his fancy : did he know her worth,
Her beauty even ? should he not be taught,
Ev'n by the price that others set upon it,
The value of that jewel he had to guard ?

Suddenly came her notice and we past,
I with our lover to his native Bay.

This love is of the brain, the mind, the soul :
That makes the sequel pure ; tho' some of us
Beginning at the sequel know no more.
Not such am I : and yet I say, the bird
That will not hear my call, however sweet,

But if my neighbour whistle answers him—
What matter ? there are others in the wood.
Yet when I saw her (and I thought him crazed, Tho' not with such a craziness as needs
A cell and keeper), those dark eyes of hers—
Oh ! such dark eyes ! and not her eyes alone,
But all from these to where she touch'd on earth
For such a craziness as Julian's look'd
No less than one divine apology.

So sweetly and so modestly she came To greet us, her young hero in her arms !
'Kiss him,' she said. 'You gave me life again.
He, but for you, had never seen it once.
His other father you ! Kiss him, and then Forgive him, if his name be Julian too.'

Talk of lost hopes and broken heart ! his own Sent such a flame into his face, I knew
Some sudden vivid pleasure hit him there.

But he was all the more resolved to go,
And sent at once to Lionel, praying him
By that great love they both had borne the dead,
To come and revel for one hour with him Before he left the land for evermore ;
And then to friends—they were not many—who lived Scatteringly about that lonely land of his,
And bade them to a banquet of farewells.

And Julian made a solemn feast : I never Sat at a costlier ; for all round his hall
From column on to column, as in a wood,
Not such as here—an equatorial one,
Great garlands swung and blossom'd ; and beneath, Heirlooms, and ancient miracles of Art, Chalice and salver, wines that, Heaven knows when,

Had suck'd the fire of some forgotten sun,
And kept it thro' a hundred years of gloom,
Yet glowing in a heart of ruby—cups
Where nymph and god ran ever round in gold—Others of glass as costly—some with gems Moveable and resettable at will,
And trebling all the rest in value—Ah heavens !
Why need I tell you all?—suffice to say That whatsoever such a house as his,
And his was old, has in it rare or fair Was brought before the guest : and they, the guests,

Wonder'd at some strange light in Julian's eyes (I told you that he had his golden hour),
And such a feast, ill-suited as it seem'd
To such a time, to Lionel's loss and his,
And that resolved self-exile from a land
He never would revisit ; such a feast
So rich, so strange, and stranger ev'n than rich,
But rich as for the nuptials of a king.

And stranger yet, at one end of the hall

Two great funereal curtains, looping Parted a little ere they met the floor,
About a picture of his lady, taken
Some years before, and falling hid the frame.
And just above the parting was a lamp:
So the sweet figure folded round with night Seem'd stepping out of darkness with a smile.

Well then—our solemn feast—we ate and drank,
And might—the wines being of such nobleness—
Have jested also, but for Julian's eyes,
And something weird and wild about it all:
What was it? for our lover seldom spoke,
Scarce touch'd the meats; but ever and anon
A priceless goblet with a priceless wine Arising, show'd he drank beyond his use;
And when the feast was near an end, he said:

‘There is a custom in the Orient, friends—
I read of it in Persia—when a man Will honour those who feast with him, he brings
And shows them whatsoever he accounts
Of all his treasures the most beautiful, Gold, jewels, arms, whatever it may be.
This custom——’

Pausing here a moment, all
The guests broke in upon him with meeting hands
And cries about the banquet—‘Beautiful!
Who could desire more beauty at a feast?’

The lover answer'd, ' There is more than one Here sitting who desires it. Laud me not Before my time, but hear me to the close.
This custom steps yet further when the guest
Is loved and honour'd to the uttermost.
For after he hath shown him gems or gold,
He brings and sets before him in rich guise
That which is thrice as beautiful as these,
The beauty that is dearest to his heart—
"O my heart's lord, would I could show you," he says,
"Ev'n my heart too." And I propose to-night
To show you what is dearest to my heart,
And my heart too.

' But solve me first a doubt.

I knew a man, nor many years ago ;
He had a faithful servant, one who loved His master more than all on earth beside.
He falling sick, and seeming close on death,
His master would not wait until he died,
But bade his menials bear him from the door,
And leave him in the public way to die.
I knew another, not so long ago,
Who found the dying servant, took him home,
And fed, and cherish'd him, and saved his life.
I ask you now, should this first master claim His service, whom does it belong to? him Who thrust him out, or him who saved his life?'

This question, so flung down before the guests,
And balanced either way by each, at length When some were doubtful how the law would hold,
Was handed over by consent of all
To one who had not spoken, Lionel.

Fair speech was his, and delicate of phrase.
And he beginning languidly—his loss Weigh'd on him yet – but warming as he went, Glanced at the point of law, to pass it by,
Affirming that as long as either lived,
By all the laws of love and gratefulness,
The service of the one so saved was due
All to the saver—adding, with a smile,
The first for many weeks—a semi-smile
As at a strong conclusion—‘body and soul
And life and limbs, all his to work his will.’

Then Julian made a secret sign to me
To bring Camilla down before them all.
And crossing her own picture as she came,
And looking as much lovelier as herself
Is lovelier than all others—on her head
A diamond circlet, and from under this
A veil, that seemed no more than gilded air, Flying by each fine ear, an Eastern gauze
With seeds of gold—so, with that grace of hers, Slow-moving as a wave against the wind,
That flings a mist behind it in the sun --

And bearing high in arms the mighty babe,
The younger Julian, who himself was crown'd
With roses, none so rosy as himself—
And over all her babe and her the jewels
Of many generations of his house
Sparkled and flash'd, for he had decked them out
As for a solemn sacrifice of love—
So she came in :—I am long in telling it,
I never yet beheld a thing so strange, Sad, sweet, and strange together—floated in—While all the guests in mute amazement rose—
And slowly pacing to the middle hall, Before the board, there paused and stood, her breast

Hard-heaving, and her eyes upon her feet,
Not daring yet to glance at Lionel.
But him she carried, him nor lights nor feast Dazed or amazed, nor eyes of men ; who cared Only to use his own, and staring wide
And hungering for the gilt and jewell'd world About him, look'd, as he is like to prove,
When Julian goes, the lord of all he saw.

‘My guests,’ said Julian : ‘you are honour’d now

Ev’n to the uttermost : in her behold
Of all my treasures the most beautiful,
Of all things upon earth the dearest to me.’
Then waving us a sign to seat ourselves,
Led his dear lady to a chair of state.

1597/

And I, by Lionel sitting, saw his face Fire, and dead ashes and all fire again
Thrice in a second, felt him tremble too,
And heard him muttering, ' So like, so like ;
She never had a sister. I knew none.
Some cousin of his and hers—O God, so like !
And then he suddenly ask'd her if she were.
She shook, and cast her eyes down, and was dumb.
And then some other question'd if she came From foreign lands, and still she did not speak.
Another, if the boy were hers : but she
To all their queries answer'd not a word,
Which made the amazement more, till one of them
Said, shuddering, ' Her spectre ! ' But his friend Replied, in half a whisper, ' Not at least The spectre that will speak if spoken to.
Terrible pity, if one so beautiful Prove, as I almost dread to find her, dumb ! '

But Julian, sitting by her, answer'd all :
' She is but dumb, because in her you see That faithful servant whom we spoke about, Obedient to her second master now ;
Which will not last. I have here to-night a guest So bound to me by common love and loss—
What ! shall I bind him more ? in his behalf, Shall I exceed the Persian, giving him
That which of all things is the dearest to me,
Not only showing ? and he himself pronounc'd That my rich gift is wholly mine to give.

‘Now all be dumb, and promise all of you Not to break in on what I say by word Or whisper, while I show you all my heart.’
And then began the story of his love
As here to-day, but not so wordily—
The passionate moment would not suffer that—Past thro’ his visions to the burial ; thence Down to this last strange hour in his own hall ;
And then rose up, and with him all his guests Once more as by enchantment ; all but he,
Lionel, who fain had risen, but fell again,
And sat as if in chains—to whom he said :

‘Take my free gift, my cousin, for your wife ;
And were it only for the giver’s sake,
And tho’ she seem so like the one you lost,
Yet cast her not away so suddenly,
Lest there be none left here to bring her back :
I leave this land for ever.’ Here he ceased.

Then taking his dear lady by one hand,
And bearing on one arm the noble babe,
He slowly brought them both to Lionel.
And there the widower husband and dead wife Rush’d each at each with a cry, that rather seem’d
For some new death than for a life renew’d ;
Whereat the very babe began to wail ;
At once they turn’d, and caught and brought him in
To their charm’d circle, and, half-killing him
With kisses, round him closed and claspt again.

But Lionel, when at last he freed himself
From wife and child, and lifted up a face
All over glowing with the sun of life,
And love, and boundless thanks—the sight of this So frightened our good friend, that turning to me
And saying, ‘It is over : let us go’— There were our horses ready at the doors—
We bade them no farewell, but mounting these He past for ever from his native land ;
And I with him, my Julian, back to mine.

BALLADS AND OTHER POEMS

TO ALFRED TENNYSON
MY GRANDSON

Golden-hair'd Ally whose name is one with mine, Crazy with laughter and babble and earth's new wine,
Now that the flower of a year and a half is thine,
O little blossom, O mine, and mine of mine,
Glorious poet who never hast written a line,
Laugh, for the name at the head of my verse is thine.
May'st thou never be wrong'd by the name that is mine

THE FIRST QUARREL.

(IN THE ISLE OF WIGHT.)

I.

WAIT a little,' you say, 'you are sure it
'll all come right,'

But the boy was born i' trouble, an' looks so wan an' so white :

Wait ! an' once I ha' waited—I hadn't to wait for long.

Now I wait, wait, wait for Harry.—No, no, you are doing me wrong !

Harry and I were married : the boy can hold up his head,

The boy was born in wedlock, but after my man was dead ;

I ha' work'd for him fifteen years, an' I work an'
I wait to the end.

I am all alone in the world, an' you are my only friend.

II.

Doctor, if you can wait, I'll tell you the tale o' my life.

When Harry an' I were children, he call'd me his own little wife.

I was happy when I was with him, an' sorry when he was away,

An' when we play'd together, I loved him better than play ;

He workt me the daisy chain—he made me the cowslip ball,

He fought the boys that were rude an' I loved him better than all.

Passionate girl tho' I was, an' often at home in disgrace,

I never could quarrel with Harry—I had but to look in his face.

III.

There was a farmer in Dorset of Harry's kin, that had need

Of a good stout lad at his farm ; he sent, an' the father agreed ;

So Harry was bound to the Dorsetshire farm for years an' for years ;

I walked with him down to the quay, poor lad, an' we parted in tears.

The boat was beginning to move, we heard them a-ringing the bell,

' I'll never love any but you, God bless you, my own little Nell.'

IV.

I was a child, an' he was a child, an' he came to harm ;
There was a girl, a hussy, that workt with him up at the farm,
One had deceived her an' left her alone with her sin an' her shame,
And so she was wicked with Harry ; the girl was the most to blame.

V.

And years went over till I that was little had grown so tall,
The men would say of the maids ' Our Nelly's the flower of 'em all.'
I didn't take heed o' them, but I taught myself all I could
To make a good wife for Harry, when Harry came home for good.

VI.

Often I seem'd unhappy, and often as happy too, For I heard it abroad in the fields ' I'll never love any but you ;'
' I'll never love any but you ' the morning song of the lark,
' I'll never love any but you ' the nightingale's hymn in the dark.

VII.

And Harry came home at last, but he look'd at me sidelong and shy, Vext me a bit, till he told me that so many years had gone by,
I had grown so handsome and tall—that I might ha' forgot him somehow—For he thought—there were other lads—he was fear'd to look at me now.

VIII.

Hard was the frost in the field, we were married o' Christmas day,
Married among the red berries, an' all as merry as May—Those were the pleasant times, my house an' my man were my pride,
We seem'd like ships i' the Channel a-sailing with wind an' tide.

IX.

But work was scant in the Isle, tho' he tried the villages round,
So Harry went over the Solent to see if work could be found ;
An' he wrote 'I ha' six weeks' work, little wife, so far as I know ;
I'll come for an hour to-morrow, an' kiss you before I go.'

So I set to righting the house, for wasn't he coming that day?
An' I hit on an old deal-box that was push'd in a corner away,
It was full of old odds an' ends, an' a letter along wi' the rest,
I had better ha' put my naked hand in a hornets' nest.

XI.

Sweetheart'—this was the letter—this was the letter I read—
' You promised to find me work near you, an' I wish I was dead—
Didn't you kiss me an' promise? you haven't done it, my lad,
An' I almost died o' your going away, an' I wish that I had.'

XII.

I too wish that I had—in the pleasant times that had past,
Before I quarrell'd with Harry—my quarrel—the first an' the last.

XIII.

For Harry came in, an' I flung him the letter that drove me wild,
An' he told it me all at once, as simple as any child,

‘What can it matter, my lass, what I did wi’ my single life ?
I ha’ been as true to you as ever a man to his wife ;
An’ she wasn’t one o’ the worst.’ ‘Then,’ I said, ‘I’m none o’ the best.’
An’ he smiled at me, ‘Ain’t you, my love ?
Come, come, little wife, let it rest !
The man isn’t like the woman, no need to make such a stir.’
But he anger’d me all the more, an’ I said ‘You were keeping with her,
When I was a-loving you all along an’ the same as before.’
An’ he didn’t speak for a while, an’ he anger’d me more and more.
Then he patted my hand in his gentle way, ‘Let bygone be !’
‘By-gones ! you kept yours hush’d,’ I said, ‘when you married me !
By-gones ma’ be come-agains ; an’ she—in her shame an’ her sin You’ll have her to nurse my child, if I die o’ my lying in !
You’ll make her its second mother ! I hate her—an’ I hate you !’
Ah, Harry, my man, you had better ha’ beaten me black an’ blue Than ha’ spoken as kind as you did, when I were so crazy wi’ spite, ‘Wait a little, my lass, I am sure it ’ill all come right.’

XIV.

An' he took three turns in the rain, an' I watch'd him, an' when he came in I felt that my heart was hard, he was all wet thro' to the skin,
An' I never said 'off wi' the wet,' I never said
'on wi' the dry,'
So I knew my heart was hard, when he came to bid me goodbye.
'You said that you hated me, Ellen, but that isn't true, you know ;
I am going to leave you a bit—you'll kiss me before I go ?'

XV.

'Going ! you're going to her—kiss her—if you will,' I said,— I was near my time wi' the boy, I must ha' been light i' my head—
'I had sooner be cursed than kiss'd !'—I didn't know well what I meant,
But I turn'd my face from him, an' he turn'd his face an' he went.

XVI.

And then he sent me a letter, 'I've gotten my work to do ;
You wouldn't kiss me, my lass, an' I never loved any but you ;

I am sorry for all the quarrel an' sorry for what she wrote,
I ha' six weeks' work in Jersey an' go to-night by the boat.'

An' the wind began to rise, an' I thought of him out at sea,
An' I felt I had been to blame ; he was always kind to me.
' Wait a little, my lass, I am sure it 'ill all come right '—
An' the boat went down that night—the boat went down that night.

RIZPAH.

17—

I.

AILING, wailing, wailing, the wind over land and sea—

And Willy's voice in the wind, 'O mother, come out to me.'

Why should he call me to-night, when he knows that I cannot go?

For the downs are as bright as day, and the full moon stares at the snow.

II.

We should be seen, my dear ; they would spy us out of the town.

The loud black nights for us, and the storm rushing over the down,

When I cannot see my own hand, but am led by the creak of the chain,

And grovel and grope for my son till I find myself drenched with the rain.

III.

Anything fallen again? nay—what was there left to fall?

I have taken them home, I have number'd the bones, I have hidden them all.

What am I saying? and what are you? do you come as a spy?

Falls? what falls? who knows? As the tree falls so must it lie.

IV.

Who let her in? how long has she been? you—what have you heard?

Why did you sit so quiet? you never have spoken a word.

O—to pray with me—yes—a lady—none of their spies—

But the night has crept into my heart, and begun to darken my eyes.

V.

Ah—you, that have lived so soft, what should you know of the night,

The blast and the burning shame and the bitter frost and the fright?

I have done it, while you were asleep—you were only made for the day.

I have gather'd my baby together—and now you may go your way.

VI.

Nay—for it's kind of you, Madam, to sit by an old dying wife.

But say nothing hard of my boy, I have only an hour of life.

I kiss'd my boy in the prison, before he went out to die.

'They dared me to do it,' he said, and he never has told me a lie.

I whipt him for robbing an orchard once when he was but a child—

'The farmer dared me to do it,' he said ; he was always so wild—

And idle—and couldn't be idle—my Willy—he never could rest.

The King should have made him a soldier, he would have been one of his best.

But he lived with a lot of wild mates, and they never would let him be good ;

They swore that he dare not rob the mail, and he swore that he would ;

And he took no life, but he took one purse, and when all was done

He slung it among his fellows—I'll none of it, said my son.

RIZPAH.

VIII.

I came into court to the Judge and the lawyers.
I told them my tale, God's own truth—but they kill'd him, they kill'd him for robbing the mail, They hang'd him in chains for a show—we had always borne a good name—
To be hang'd for a thief—and then put away—isn't that enough shame?
Dust to dust—low down—let us hide! but they set him so high
That all the ships of the world could stare at him, passing by.
God 'ill pardon the hell-black raven and horrible fowls of the air,
But not the black heart of the lawyer who kill'd him and hang'd him there.

IX.

And the jailer forced me away. I had bid him my last goodbye;
They had fasten'd the door of his cell. 'O mother!' I heard him cry.
I couldn't get back tho' I tried, he had something further to say,
And now I never shall know it. The jailer forced me away.

X.

Then since I couldn't but hear that cry of my boy that was dead,
They seized me and shut me up : they fasten'd me down on my bed.
' Mother, O mother ! '—he call'd in the dark to me year after year—They beat me for that, they beat me—you know that I couldn't but hear ;
And then at the last they found I had grown so stupid and still They let me abroad again—but the creatures had worked their will.

XI.

Flesh of my flesh was gone, but bone of my bone was left—
I stole them all from the lawyers—and you, will you call it a theft ?—
My baby, the bones that had suck'd me, the bones that had laughed and had cried—Theirs ? O no ! they are mine—not theirs—they had moved in my side.

Do you think I was scared by the bones ? I kiss'd 'em, I buried 'em all—I can't dig deep, I am old—in the night by the churchyard wall.

My Willy 'ill rise up whole when the trumpet of judgment 'ill sound,
But I charge you never to say that I laid him in holy ground.

XIII.

They would scratch him up—they would hang him again on the cursed tree.

Sin? O yes—we are sinners, I know—let all that be,
And read me a Bible verse of the Lord's good will toward men—

'Full of compassion and mercy, the Lord'—let me hear it again ;

'Full of compassion and mercy—long-suffering.'
Yes, O yes !

For the lawyer is born but to murder—the Saviour lives but to bless.

He'll never put on the black cap except for the worst of the worst,

And the first may be last—I have heard it in church—and the last may be first.

Suffering—O long-suffering—yes, as the Lord must know,

Year after year in the mist and the wind and the shower and the snow.

XIV.

Heard, have you? what? they have told you he never repented his sin.

How do they know it? are they his mother? are you of his kin?

Heard ! have you ever heard, when the storm on the downs began,
The wind that 'ill wail like a child and the sea that 'ill moan like a man ?

XV.

Election, Election and Reprobation—it's all very well.
But I go to-night to my boy, and I shall not find him in Hell.
For I cared so much for my boy that the Lord has look'd into my care,
And He means me I'm sure to be happy with Willy, I know not where.

XVI.

And if he be lost—but to save my soul, that is all your desire :
Do you think that I care for my soul if my boy be gone to the fire ?
I have been with God in the dark—go, go, you may leave me alone—
You never have borne a child—you are just as hard as a stone.

XVII.

Madam, I beg your pardon ! I think that you mean to be kind,
But I cannot hear what you say for my Willy's voice in the wind—

The snow and the sky so bright—he used but to call in the dark,

And he calls to me now from the church and not from the gibbet—for hark !

Nay—you can hear it yourself—it is coming—shaking the walls—

Willy—the moon's in a cloud——Good night. I am going. He calls.

¹ The vowels aï, pronounced separately though in the closest conjunction, best render the sound of the long i and y in this dialect. But since such words as craïin', daïin', whaï, aï (I), &c., look awkward except in a page of express phonetics, I have thought it better to leave the simple i and y and to trust that my readers will give them the broader pronunciation.

 Soä sow-droonk that tha doesn not touch thy 'at to the Squire ;'
 An' I looök'd cock-eyed at my noäse an' I seeäd
 'im a-gittin' o' fire ;
 But sin' I wur hallus i' liquor an' hallus as droonk as a king, Foälks' coostom flitted awaäy like a kite wi' a brokken string.

V.

An' Sally she wesh'd foälks' cloäths to keep the wolf fro' the door, Eh but the moor she riled me, she druv me to drink the moor,

Fur I fun', when 'er back wur turn'd, wheer Sally's owd stockin' wur 'id,
An' I grabb'd the munny she maäde, and I weär'd it o' liquor, I did.

VI.

An' one night I cooms 'oäm like a bull gotten loose at a faäir, An' she wur a-waäitin' fo'mma, an' cryin' and teärin' 'er 'aäir,
An' I tummled athurt the craädle an' sweär'd as I'd breäk ivry stick O' furnitur 'ere i' the 'ouse, an' I gied our Sally a kick, .
An' I mash'd the taäbles an' chairs, an' she an' the babby beäl'd,¹ Fur I knaw'd naw moor what I did nor a mortal beäst o' the feäld.

VII.

An' when I waäked i' the murnin' I seeäd that our Sally went laämed Cos' o' the kick as I gied 'er, an' I wur dreädful ashaämed ;
An' Sally wur sloomy² an' draggie-taäil'd in an owd turn gown,
An' the babby's faäce wurn't wesh'd an' the 'ole
'ouse hupside down.

VIII.

An' then I minded our Sally sa pratty an' neät an' sweeät,

Straät as a pole an' cleän as a flower fro' 'eäd to fecät:

An' then I minded the fust kiss I gied 'er by Thursby thurn;

Theer wur a lark a-singin' 'is best of a Sunday at murn,

Couldn't see 'im, we 'eärd 'im a-mountin' oop
'igher an' 'igher,

An' then 'e turn'd to the sun, an' 'e shined like a sparkle o' fire.

'Doesn't tha see 'im,' she axes, 'fur I can see
'im?' an' I

Seeäd nobbut the smile o' the sun as danced in 'er pratty blue eye;

An' I says 'I mun gie tha a kiss,' an' Sally says
'Noä, thou moänt,'

But I gied 'er a kiss, an' then anoother, an' Sally says 'doänt!'

IX.

An' when we coom'd into Meeätin', at fust she wur all in a tew,

But, arter, we sing'd the 'ymn together like birds on a beugh;

An' Muggins 'e preäch'd o' Hell fire an' the loov o' God fur men,

An' then upo' coomin' awaäy Sally gied me a kiss ov 'ersen.

X.

I heer wur a fall fro' a kiss to a kick like Saätan as fell Down out o' heaven i' Hell-fire—thaw theer's naw drinkin' i' Hell ;
Meä fur to kick our Sally as kep the wolf fro' the door,
All along o' the drink, fur I loov'd 'er as well as afoor.

XI.

Sa like a graät num-cumpus I blubber'd awaäy o' the bed—
' Weänt niver do it naw moor ; ' an' Sally looökt up an' she said,
' I'll upowd it ' tha weänt ; thou'rt laike the rest o'
the men,
Thou'll goä sniffin' about the tap till tha does it agëan.
Theer's thy hennemy, man, an' I knaws, as knaws tha sa well,
That, if tha seeäs 'im an' smells 'im tha'll foller
'im slick into Hell.'

XII.

' Naäy,' says I, ' fur I weänt goä sniffin' about the tap.'
' Weänt tha?' she says, an' mysen I thowt i' mysen 'mayhap.'

' I'll uphold it.

‘Noa : ’ an’ I started awaäy like a shot, an’ down to the Hinn, An’ I browt what tha seeäs stannin’ theer, yon big black bottle o’ gin.

XIII.

‘That caps owt,’¹ says Sally, an’ saw she begins to cry,
But I puts it inter ’er ’ands an’ I says to ’er, ‘Sally,’ says I, ‘Stan’ ’im theer i’ the naäme o’ the Lord an’ the power ov ’is Graäce, Stan’ ’im theer, fur I’ll looök my hennemy straît
i’ the faäce,
Stan’ ’im theer i’ the winder, an’ let ma looök at
’im then,
E’ seeäms naw moor nor watter, an’ ’e’s the Divil’s oän sen.’

XIV.

An’ I wur down i’ tha mouth, couldn’t do naw work an’ all,
Nasty an’ snaggy an’ shaäky, an’ poonch’d my
’and wi’ the hawl,
But she wur a power o’ coomfut, an’ sattled ’ersen
o’ my knee,
An’ coäxd an’ coodled me oop till agëan I feel’d mysen free.

XV.

An' Sally she tell'd it about, an' foälk stood agawmin'¹ in,
As thaw it wur summat bewitch'd istance of a quart o' gin ;
An' some on 'em said it wur watter—an' I wur chousin' the wife,
Fur I couldn't 'owd 'ands off gin, wur it nobbut to saave my life ;
An' blacksmith 'e strips me the thick ov 'is airm, an' 'e shaws it to me,
'Feäl thou this ! thou can't grow this upo' watter !' says he.
An' Doctor 'e calls o' Sunday an' just as candles was lit,
'Thou moänt do it,' he says, 'tha mun break 'im off bit by bit.'
'Thou'rt but a Methody-man,' says Parson, and lääys down 'is 'at,
An' 'e points to the bottle o' gin, 'but I respecks tha fur that ;'
An' Squire, his oän very sen, walks down fro' the
'All to see,
An' 'e spans 'is 'and into mine, 'fur I respecks tha,' says 'e ;
An' coostom agëan draw'd in like a wind fro' far an' wide,
And browt me the booöts to be cobbled fro' hafe the coontryside.

XVI.

An' theer 'e stans an' theer 'e shall stan to my dying daäy ;
I 'a gotten to loov 'im ageän in anoother kind of a waäy,
Proud on 'im, like, my lad, an' I keeäps 'im cleän an' bright,
Loovs 'im, an' roobs 'im, an' doosts 'im, an' puts
'im back i' the light.

XVII.

Wouldn't a pint a' sarved as well as a quart ?
Naw doubt :
But I liked a bigger feller to fight wi' an' fowt it out.
Fine an' meller 'e mun be by this, if I cared to taäste,
But I moänt, my lad, and I weänt, fur I'd feäl mysen cleän disgräaced.

XVIII.

An' once I said to the Missis, ' My lass, when I cöoms to die,
Smash the bottle to smithers, the Divil's in 'im,' said I.
But arter I chaänged my mind, an' if Sally be left aloän,
I'll hev 'im a-buried wi'mma an' taäke 'im afoor the Throän.

XIX.

Coom thou 'eer—yon laädy a-steppin' along the streeät,
Doesn't tha knaw 'er—sa pratty, an' feät, an' neät, an' sweeät?
Look at the cloäths on 'er back; thebbe ammost spick-span-new,
An' Tommy's faäce is as fresh as a codlin 'at's wesh'd i' the dew.

XX.

'Ere's our Sally an' Tommp, an' we be a-goin to dine,
Baäcon an' taätes, an' a beslings-puddin'¹ an'
Adam's wine;
But if tha wants ony grog tha mun goä fur it down to the Hinn, Fur I weänt shed a drop on 'is blood, noa, not fur Sally's oän kin.

THE REVENGE.

A BALLAD OF THE FLEET.

I.

T FLORES in the Azores Sir Richard Grenville lay,
And a pinnace, like a flutter'd bird, came flying from far away :

' Spanish ships of war at sea ! we have sighted fifty-three !'

Then swear Lord Thomas Howard : ' 'Fore God
I am no coward ;

But I cannot meet them here, for my ships are out of gear,

And the half my men are sick. I must fly, but follow quick.

We are six ships of the line ; can we fight with fifty-three ? '

II.

Then spake Sir Richard Grenville : ' I know you are no coward ;

You fly them for a moment to fight with them again.

But I've ninety men and more that are lying sick ashore.

I should count myself the coward if I left them, my Lord Howard,
To these Inquisition dogs and the devildoms of Spain.'

III.

So Lord Howard past away with five ships of war that day, Till he melted like a cloud in the silent summer heaven ;
But Sir Richard bore in hand all his sick men from the land
Very carefully and slow,
Men of Bideford in Devon,
And we laid them on the ballast down below ;
For we brought them all aboard,
And they blest him in their pain, that they were not left to Spain,
To the thumbscrew and the stake, for the glory of the Lord.

IV.

He had only a hundred seamen to work the ship and to fight,
And he sailed away from Flores till the Spaniard came in sight,
With his huge sea-castles heaving upon the weather bow.
' Shall we fight or shall we fly ?

Good Sir Richard, tell us now,
For to fight is but to die !
There'll be little of us left by the time this sun be set.'
And Sir Richard said again : ' We be all good English men.
Let us bang these dogs of Seville, the children of the devil,
For I never turn'd my back upon Don or devil yet.'

V.

Sir Richard spoke and he laugh'd, and we roar'd a hurrah, and so
The little Revenge ran on sheer into the heart of the foe,
With her hundred fighters on deck, and her ninety sick below ;
For half of their fleet to the right and half to the left were seen,
And the little Revenge ran on thro' the long sea-lane between.

VI.

Thousands of their soldiers look'd down from their decks and laugh'd,
Thousands of their seamen made mock at the mad little craft
Running on and on, till delay'd

By their mountain-like San Philip that, of fifteen hundred tons,
And up-shadowing high above us with her yawning tiers of guns,
Took the breath from our sails, and we stay'd.

VII.

And while now the great San Philip hung above us like a cloud Whence the thunderbolt will fall
Long and loud,
Four galleons drew away
From the Spanish fleet that day,
And two upon the larboard and two upon the starboard lay,
And the battle-thunder broke from them all.

VIII.

But anon the great San Philip, she bethought herself and went Having that within her womb that had left her ill content ;
And the rest they came aboard us, and they fought us hand to hand,
For a dozen times they came with their pikes and musqueteers,
And a dozen times we shook 'em off as a dog that shakes his ears
When he leaps from the water to the land.

IX.

And the sun went down, and the stars came out far over the summer sea,
But never a moment ceased the fight of the one and the fifty-three.
Ship after ship, the whole night long, their high-built galleons came,
Ship after ship, the whole night long, with her battle-thunder and flame ; Ship after ship, the whole night long, drew back with her dead and her shame.
For some were sunk and many were shatter'd, and so could fight us no more—God of battles, was ever a battle like this in the world before?

For he said 'Fight on ! fight on !'
Tho' his vessel was all but a wreck ;
And it chanced that, when half of the short summer night was gone,
With a grisly wound to be drest he had left the deck,
But a bullet struck him that was dressing it suddenly dead,
And himself he was wounded again in the side and the head,
And he said 'Fight on ! fight on !'

XI.

And the night went down, and the sun smiled ou
far over the summer sea,
And the Spanish fleet with broken sides lay round us all in a ring ;
But they dared not touch us again, for they fear'd that we still could sting,
So they watch'd what the end would be.
And we had not fought them in vain,
But in perilous plight were we,
Seeing forty of our poor hundred were slain,
And half of the rest of us maim'd for life In the crash of the cannonades and the desperate strife ;
And the sick men down in the hold were most of them stark and cold, And the pikes were all broken or bent, and the powder was all of it spent ;
And the masts and the rigging were lying over the side ;
But Sir Richard cried in his English pride,
' We have fought such a fight for a day and a night
As may never be fought again !
We have won great glory, my men !
And a day less or more
At sea or ashore,
We die—does it matter when ?
Sink me the ship, Master Gunner—sink her, split her in twain !
Fall into the hands of God, not into the hands of Spain !

XII.

And the gunner said 'Ay, ay,' but the scamen made reply :

' We have children, we have wives,

And the Lord hath spared our lives.

We will make the Spaniard promise, if we yield, to let us go ;

We shall live to fight again and to strike another blow.'

And the lion there lay dying, and they yielded to the foe.

XIII.

And the stately Spanish men to their flagship bore him then,

Where they laid him by the mast, old Sir Richard caught at last,

And they praised him to his face with their courtly foreign grace ;

But he rose upon their decks, and he cried :

' I have fought for Queen and Faith like a valiant man and true ;

I have only done my duty as a man is bound to do :

With a joyful spirit I Sir Richard Grenville die !'

And he fell upon their decks, and he died.

XIV.

And they stared at the dead that had been so valiant and true,

And had holden the power and glory of Spain so cheap

That he dared her with one little ship and his English few ;
Was he devil or man ? He was devil for aught they knew,
But they sank his body with honour down into the deep,
And they mann'd the Revenge with a swarthier alien crew,
And away she sail'd with her loss and long'd for her own ;
When a wind from the lands they had ruin'd awoke from sleep,
And the water began to heave and the weather to moan,
And or ever that evening ended a great gale blew, And a wave like the wave that is raised by an earthquake grew,
Till it smote on their hulls and their sails and their masts and their flags,
And the whole sea plunged and fell on the shot-shatter'd navy of Spain,
And the little Revenge herself went down by the island crags
To be lost evermore in the main.

THE SISTERS.

THEY have left the doors ajar ; and by their clash,
And prelude on the keys, I know the song,
Their favourite—which I call ‘The Tables Turned.’
Evelyn begins it ‘O diviner Air.’

EVELYN.

O diviner Air,
Thro’ the heat, the drowth, the dust, the glare,
Far from out the west in shadowing showers,
Over all the meadow baked and bare,
Making fresh and fair
All the bowers and the flowers,
Fainting flowers, faded bowers,
Over all this weary world of ours, Breathe, diviner Air !

A sweet voice that—you scarce could better that.
Now follows Edith echoing Evelyn.

EDITH.

O diviner light,
Thro' the cloud that roofs our noon with night,
Thro' the blotting mist, the blinding showers,
Far from out a sky for ever bright,
Over all the woodland's flooded bowers,
Over all the meadow's drowning flowers,
Over all this ruin'd world of ours,
Break diviner light !

Marvellously like, their voices—and themselves !
Tho' one is somewhat deeper than the other,
As one is somewhat graver than the other—Edith than Evelyn. Your good Uncle, whom You count the father of your fortune, longs
For this alliance : let me ask you then,
Which voice most takes you ? for I do not doubt,
Being a watchful parent, you are taken
With one or other : tho' sometimes I fear
You may be flickering, fluttering in a doubt Between the two—which must not be—which might
Be death to one : they both are beautiful :
Evelyn is gayer, wittier, prettier, says
The common voice, if one may trust it : she ?
No ! but the paler and the graver, Edith.
Woo her and gain her then : no wavering, boy !
The graver is perhaps the one for you

Who jest and laugh so easily and so well.
For love will go by contrast, as by likes.

No sisters ever prized each other more.
Not so : their mother and her sister loved More passionately still.

But that my best
And oldest friend, your Uncle, wishes it,
And that I know you worthy everyway
To be my son, I might, perchance, be loath
To part them, or part from them : and yet one Should marry, or all the broad lands in your view From this bay window—which our house has held Three hundred years—will pass collaterally.

My father with a child on either knee,
A hand upon the head of either child,
Smoothing their locks, as golden as his own
Were silver, 'get them wedded' would he say.
And once my prattling Edith ask'd him 'why?'
Ay, why? said he, 'for why should I go lame?'
Then told them of his wars, and of his wound.
For see—this wine—the grape from whence it flow'd
Was blackening on the slopes of Portugal,
When that brave soldier, down the terrible ridge Plunged in the last fierce charge at Waterloo, And caught the laming bullet. He left me this,
Which yet retains a memory of its youth,
As I of mine, and my first passion. Come!
Here's to your happy union with my child!

Yet must you change your name : no fault of mine !

You say that you can do it as willingly
 As birds make ready for their bridal-time
 By change of feather : for all that, my boy,
 Some birds are sick and sullen when they moult.
 An old and worthy name ! but mine that stirr'd Among our civil wars and earlier too
 Among the Roses, the more venerable.
 I care not for a name—no fault of mine.
 Once more—a happier marriage than my own !

You see yon Lombard poplar on the plain.
 The highway running by it leaves a breadth
 Of sward to left and right, where, long ago,
 One bright May morning in a world of song,
 I lay at leisure, watching overhead
 The ærial poplar wave, an amber spire.

I dozed ; I woke. An open landaulet Whirl'd by, which, after it had past me, show'd Turning my way, the loveliest face on earth.
 The face of one there sitting opposite,
 On whom I brought a strange unhappiness,
 That time I did not see.

Love at first sight
 May seem—with goodly rhyme and reason for it—Possible—at first glimpse, and for a face Gone in a moment—strange. Yet once, when first I came on lake Llanberris in the dark,

A moonless night with storm—one lightning-fork Flash'd out the lake ; and tho' I loiter'd there
The full day after, yet in retrospect
That less than momentary thunder-sketch
Of lake and mountain conquers all the day.

The Sun himself has limn'd the face for me.
Not quite so quickly, no, nor half as well.
For look you here—the shadows are too deep,
And like the critic's blurring comment make
The veriest beauties of the work appear
The darkest faults : the sweet eyes frown : the lips Seem but a gash. My sole memorial
Of Edith—no the other,—both indeed.

So that bright face was flash'd thro' sense and soul
And by the poplar vanish'd—to be found
Long after, as it seem'd, beneath the tall Tree-bowers, and those long-sweeping beechen boughs
Of our New Forest. I was there alone :
The phantom of the whirling landaulet
For ever past me by : when one quick peal
Of laughter drew me thro' the glimmering glades Down to the snowlike sparkle of a cloth
On fern and foxglove. Lo, the face again, My Rosalind in this Arden—Edith—all
One bloom of youth, health, beauty, happiness
And moved to merriment at a passing jest.

There one of those about her knowing me Call'd me to join them ; so with these I spent What seem'd my crowning hour, my day of days.

I woo'd her then, nor unsuccessfully,
The worse for her, for me ! was I content ?
Ay—no, not quite ; for now and then I thought Laziness, vague love-longings, the bright May,
Had made a heated haze to magnify
The charm of Edith—that a man's ideal Is high in Heaven, and lodged with Plato's God,
Not findable here—content, and not content,
In some such fashion as a man may be That having had the portrait of his friend Drawn by an artist, looks at it, and says,
' Good ! very like ! not altogether he.'

As yet I had not bound myself by words,
Only, believing I loved Edith, made Edith love me. Then came the day when I, Flattering myself that all my doubts were fools Born of the fool this Age that doubts of all—
Not I that day of Edith's love or mine—
Had braced my purpose to declare myself :
I stood upon the stairs of Paradise.
The golden gates would open at a word.
I spoke it—told her of my passion, seen
And lost and found again, had got so far,
Had caught her hand, her eyelids fell—I heard Wheels, and a noise of welcome at the doors—

On a sudden after two Italian years Had set the blossom of her health again,
The younger sister, Evelyn, enter'd—there,
There was the face, and altogether she.
The mother fell about the daughter's neck,
The sisters closed in one another's arms,
Their people throng'd about them from the hall,
And in the thick of question and reply
I fled the house, driven by one angel face,
And all the Furies.

I was bound to her ;
I could not free myself in honour—bound
Not by the sounded letter of the word,
But counterpressures of the yielded hand
That timorously and faintly echoed mine,
Quick blushes, the sweet dwelling of her eyes Upon me when she thought I did not see—Were these not bonds? nay, nay, but could I wed her

Loving the other? do her that great wrong?
Had I not dream'd I loved her yesternorn?
Had I not known where Love, at first a fear, Grew after marriage to full height and form?
Yet after marriage, that mock-sister there—Brother-in-law—the fiery nearness of it—Unlawful and disloyal brotherhood—
What end but darkness could ensue from this
For all the three? So Love and Honour jarr'd Tho' Love and Honour join'd to raise the full High-tide of doubt that sway'd me up and down

Advancing nor retreating.

Edith wrote :

‘ My mother bids me ask ’ (I did not tell you—
A widow with less guile than many a child.
God help the wrinkled children that are Christ’s
As well as the plump cheek—she wrought us harm, Poor soul, not knowing) ‘ are you ill ? ’ (so ran The letter) ‘ you have not been here of late.
You will not find me here. At last I go
On that long-promised visit to the North.
I told your wayside story to my mother And Evelyn. She remembers you. Farewell.
Pray come and see my mother. Almost blind With ever-growing cataract, yet she thinks She sees you when she hears. Again farewell.’

Cold words from one I had hoped to warm so far

That I could stamp my image on her heart !
‘ Pray come and see my mother, and farewell.’
Cold, but as welcome as free airs of heaven
After a dungeon’s closeness. Selfish, strange !
What dwarfs are men ! my strangled vanity Utter’d a stifled cry—to have vexed myself
And all in vain for her—cold heart or none—
No bride for me. Yet so my path was clear To win the sister.

Whom I woo’d and won.

For Evelyn knew not of my former suit, Because the simple mother work’d upon

By Edith pray'd me not to whisper of it.
And Edith would be bridesmaid on the day.

But on that day, not being all at ease,
I from the altar glancing back upon her,
Before the first 'I will' was utter'd, saw
The bridesmaid pale, statuelike, passionless—
'No harm, no harm,' I turn'd again, and placed My ring upon the finger of my bride.

So, when we parted, Edith spoke no word,
She wept no tear, but round my Evelyn clung In utter silence for so long, I thought
'What will she never set her sister free?

We left her, happy each in each, and then,
As tho' the happiness of each in each
Were not enough, must fain have torrents, lakes, Hills, the great things of Nature and the fair,
To lift us as it were from commonplace,
And help us to our joy. Better have sent Our Edith thro' the glories of the earth,
To change with her horizon, if true Love
Were not his own imperial all-in-all.

Far off we went. My God, I would not live Save that I think this gross hard-seeming world Is our misshaping vision of the Powers Behind the world, that make our griefs our gains.

For on the dark night of our marriage-day
The great Tragedian, that had quench'd herself

In that assumption of the bridesmaid—she That loved me—our true Edith—her brain broke With over-acting, till she rose and fled Beneath a pitiless rush of Autumn rain
To the deaf church—to be let in—to pray Before that altar—so I think ; and there
They found her beating the hard Protestant doors.
She died and she was buried ere we knew.

I learnt it first. I had to speak. At once
The bright quick smile of Evelyn, that had sunn'd
The morning of our marriage, past away :
And on our home-return the daily want
Of Edith in the house, the garden, still Haunted us like her ghost ; and by and by, Either from that necessity for talk Which lives with blindness, or plain innocence
Of nature, or desire that her lost child Should earn from both the praise of heroism,
The mother broke her promise to the dead,
And told the living daughter with what love
Edith had welcomed my brief wooing of her,
And all her sweet self-sacrifice and death.

Henceforth that mystic bond betwixt the twins—
Did I not tell you they were twins?—prevail'd
So far that no caress could win my wife
Back to that passionate answer of full heart
I had from her at first. Not that her love, Tho' scarce as great as Edith's power of love,

Had lessen'd, but the mother's garrulous wail
For ever woke the unhappy Past again,
Till that dead bridesmaid, meant to be my bride, Put forth cold hands between us, and I fear'd
The very fountains of her life were chill'd ;
So took her thence, and brought her here, and here

She bore a child, whom reverently we call'd Edith ; and in the second year was born
A second—this I named from her own self, Evelyn ; then two weeks—no more—she joined,
In and beyond the grave, that one she loved.

Now in this quiet of declining life,
Thro' dreams by night and trances of the day,
The sisters glide about me hand in hand,
Both beautiful alike, nor can I tell
One from the other, no, nor care to tell
One from the other, only know they come,
They smile upon me, till, remembering all
The love they both have borne me, and the love
I bore them both—divided as I am
From either by the stillness of the grave—
I know not which of these I love the best.

But you love Edith ; and her own true eyes Are traitors to her ; our quick Evelyn—
The merrier, prettier, wittier, as they talk,
And not without good reason, my good son—
Is yet untouch'd : and I that hold them both Dearest of all things—well, I am not sure --

But if there lie a preference eitherway,
And in the rich vocabulary of Love
'Most dearest' be a true superlative—
I think I likewise love your Edith most.

THE VILLAGE WIFE ; OR, THE ENTAIL.¹

I.

USE-KEEPER sent tha my lass, fur
New Squire coom'd last night.
Butter an' heggs—yis—yis. I'll goä wi' tha back : all right ; Butter I warrants be prime, an' I warrants the heggs be as well, Hafe a pint o' milk runs out when ya breäks the shell.

II.

Sit thysen down fur a bit : hev a glass o' cowslip wine !
I liked the owd Squire an' 'is gells as thaw they was gells o' mine, Fur then we was all es one, the Squire an' 'is darters an' me,
Hall but Miss Annie, the heldest, I niver not took to she :

But Nelly, the last of the cletch,¹ I liked 'er the fust on 'em all,
Fur hoffsens we talkt o' my darter es died o' the fever at fall :
An' I thowt 'twur the will o' the Lord, but Miss Annie she said it wur draäins, Fur she hedn't naw coomfut in 'er, an' arn'd naw thanks fur 'er paäins.
Eh ! thebbe all wi' the Lord my childer, I han't gotten none !
Sa new Squire's coom'd wi' 'is taäil in 'is 'and, an'
owd Squire's gone.

III.

Fur 'staäte be i' taäil, my lass : tha dosn' knaw what that be ?
But I knaws the law, I does, for the lawyer ha towd it me.
' When theer's naw 'cäd to a 'Ouse by the fault o' that ere maäle—
The gells they counts fur nowt, and the next un he taäkes the taäil.'

IV.

What be the next un like ? can tha tell ony harm on 'im lass ?—
Naay sit down—naw 'urry—sa cowl !—hev another glass !

Straänge an' cowl fur the time ! we may happen a fall o' snaw—

Not es I cares fur to hear ony harm, but I likes to knaw.

An' I 'oäps es 'e beänt boooklarn'd : but he dosn' not coom fro' the shere ;

We'd anew o' that wi' the Squire, an' we haätes boooklarnin' ere.

V.

Fur Squire wur a Varsity scholard, an niver lookt arter the land—

Whoäts or turmuts or taätes—'e 'ed hallus a booök i' 'is 'and,

Hallus aloän wi' 'is booöks, thaw nigh upo' seventy year.

An' booöks, what's booöks ? thou knaws thebbe neyther 'ere nor theer.

VI.

An' the gells, they hedn't naw taäils, an' the lawyer he tow'd it me

That 'is taäil were soä tied up es he couldn't cut down a tree !

'Drat the trees,' says I, to be sewer I haätes 'em, my lass,

Fur we puts the muck o' the land, an' they sucks the muck fro' the grass.

VII.

An' Squire wur hallus a-smilin', an' gied to the tramps goin' by—
An' all o' the wust i' the parish—wi' hoffens a drop in 'is eye.
An' ivry darter o' Squire's hed her awn ridin-erse to 'ersen ;
An' they rampaged about wi' their grooms, an'
was 'untin' arter the men, An' hallus a-dallackt ¹ an' dizen'd out, an' a-buyin' new cloäthes,
While 'e sit like a graät glimmer-gowk ² wi' 'is glasses athurt 'is noäse, An' 'is noäse sa grufted wi' snuff es it couldn't be scroob'd awaäy,
Fur atween 'is reädin' an' writin' 'e snift up a box in a daäy,
An' 'e niver runn'd arter the fox, nor arter the birds wi' 'is gun,
An' 'e niver not shot one 'are, but 'e leäved it to Charlie 'is son,
An' 'e niver not fish'd 'is awn ponds, but Charlie
'e cotch'd the pike, Fur 'e warn't not burn to the land, an' 'e didn't take kind to it like ;
But I eärs es 'e'd gie fur a howry ³ owd book thutty pound an' moor,
An' 'e'd wrote an' owd book, his awn sen, sa I knew'd es 'e'd coom to be poor ;

An' 'e gied—I be fear'd fur to tell tha 'ow much—fur an owd scratted stoän, An' 'e digg'd up a loomp i' the land an' 'e got a brown pot an' a boän,
 An' 'e bowt owd money, es wouldn't goä, wi' good gowd o' the Queen,
 An' 'e bowt little statutes all-naäkt an' which was a shaame to be seen ;
 But 'e niver looökt ower a bill, nor 'e niver not seed to owt,
 An' 'e niver knawd nowt but booöks, an' booöks, as thou knaws, beänt nowt.

VIII.

But owd Squire's laady es long es she lived she kep 'em all clear, Thaw es long es she lived I niver hed none of 'er darters 'ere ;
 But arter she died we was all es one, the childer an' me,
 An' sarvints runn'd in an' out, an' offens we hed
 'em to tea.
 Lawk ! 'ow I laugh'd when the lasses 'ud talk o'
 their Missis's waäys, An' the Missisis talk'd o' the lasses.—I'll tell tha some o' these daäys.
 Hoänly Miss Annie were saw stuck oop, like
 'er mother afoor—
 'Er an' 'er blessed darter—they niver derken'd my door.

IX.

An' Squire 'e smiled an' 'e smiled till 'e'd gotten a fright at last,
An' 'e calls fur 'is son, fur the 'turney's letters they foller'd sa fast ;
But Squire wur afear'd o' 'is son, an' 'e says to
'im, meek as a mouse,
'Lad, thou mun cut off thy taäil, or the gells 'ull
goä to the 'Ouse, Fur I finds es I be that i' debt, es I 'oäps es thou'll 'elp me a bit,
An' if thou'll 'gree to cut off thy taäil I may saäve mysen yit.'

X.

But Charlie 'e sets back 'is ears, an' 'e sweärs, an'
'e says to 'im 'Noa.'
'I've gotten the 'staäte by the taäil an' be däng'd if I iver let goa !
Coom ! coom ! feyther,' 'e says, 'why shouldn't thy booöks be sowd ?
I hears es soom o thy booöks mebbe worth their weight i' gowd.'

XI.

Heäps an' heäps o' booöks, I ha' see'd 'em, belong'd to the Squire,
But the lasses 'ed teärd out leaves i' the middle to kindle the fire ;

Sa moäst on 'is owd big booöks fetch'd nigh to nowt at the saäle,
 And Squire were at Charlie ageän to git 'im to cut off 'is taäil.

XII.

Ya wouldn't find Charlie's likes—'e were that outdacious at 'oäm,
 Not thaw ya went fur to raäke out Hell wi' a small-tooth coämb—Droonk wi' the Quoloty's wine, an' droonk wi' the farmer's ääle,
 Mad wi' the lasses an' all—an' 'e wouldn't cut off the taäil.

XIII.

Thou's coom'd oop by the beck; and a thurn be a-grawin' theer,
 I niver ha seed it sa white wi' the Maäy es I see'd it to-year—Theerabouts Charlie joompt—and it gied me a scare tother night, Fur I thowt it wur Charlie's ghoäst i' the derk, fur it looökt sa white.
 'Billy,' says 'e, 'hev a joomp!—thaw the banks o' the beck be sa high, Fur he ca'd 'is 'erse Billy-rough-un, thaw niver a hair wur awry;
 But Billy fell bakkuds o' Charlie, an' Charlie 'e brok 'is neck,
 So theer wur a hend o' the taäil, fur 'e lost 'is taäil i' the beck.

V.

Sa 'is taäl wur lost an' 'is booöks wur gone an'
'is boy wur deäd,
An' Squire 'e smiled an' 'e smiled, but 'e niver not lift oop 'is eäd :
Hallus a soft un Squire ! an' 'e smiled, fur 'e hedn't naw friend,
Sa feyther an' son was buried together, an' this wur the hend.

XV.

An' Parson as hesn't the call, nor the mooney, but hes the pride,
'E reäds of a sewer an' sartin 'oäp o' the tother
side ;
But I beänt that sewer es the Lord, howsiver they praäy'd an' praäy'd, Lets them inter 'eaven eäsy es leäves their debts to be pääd.
Siver the mou'ds rattled down upo' poor owd Squire i' the wood,
An' I cried along wi' the gells, fur they weänt niver coom to naw good.

XVI.

Fur Molly the long 'un she walkt awaäy wi' a hofficer lad,
An' nawbody 'eärd on 'er sin, sa o' coorse she be gone to the bad !

An' Lucy wur laäme o' one leg, sweet-'arts she niver 'ed none—Straänge an' unheppen¹ Miss Lucy ! we naämed her 'Dot an' gaw one !'
 An' Hetty wur weak i' the hattics, wi'out ony harm i' the legs,
 An' the fever 'ed baäked Jinny's 'cäd as bald as one o' them heggs,
 An' Nelly wur up fro' the craädle as big i' the mouth as a cow, An' saw she mun hammergrate,² lass, or she weänt git a maäte onyhow !
 An' es fur Miss Annie es call'd me afoor my awn foälks to my faäce
 'A hignorant village wife as 'ud hev to be larn'd her awn plaäce,' Hes fur Miss Hannie the heldest hes now be a-grawin' sa howd,
 I knaws that mooch o' sheä, es it beänt not fit to be towd !

XVII.

Sa I didn't not taäke it kindly ov owd Miss Annie to sääy Es I should be talkin ageän 'em, es soon es they went awaäy, Fur, lawks ! 'ow I cried when they went, an' our Nelly she gied me 'er 'and,
 Fur I'd ha done owt fur the Squire an' 'is gells es belong'd to the land ;

Booöks, es I said afoor, thebbe neyther 'ere nor theer !

But I sarved 'em wi' butter an' heggs fur huppuds o' twenty year.

XVIII.

An' they hallus pääd what I hax'd, sa I hallus deal'd wi' the Hall,

An' they knaw'd what butter wur, an' they knaw'd what a hegg wur an' all ;

Hugger-mugger they lived, but they wasn't that eäsy to pleäse,

Till I gied 'em Hinjian curn, an' they laäid big heggs es tha sees ;

An' I niver puts sääme¹ i' my butter, they does it at Willis's farm,

Taäste another drop o' the wine—tweänt do tha naw harm.

XIX.

Sa new Squire's coom'd wi' 'is taäil in 'is 'and, an'
owd Squire's gone ;

I heard 'im a roomlin' by, but arter my nightcap wur on ;

Sa I han't clapt eyes on 'im yit, fur he coom'd last night sa laäte -

Pluksh !!!² the hens i' the peäs ! why didn't tha hesp the gaäte ?

¹ Lard.

² A cry accompanied by a clapping of hands to scare trespassing fowl.

IN THE CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL.

I.

OUR doctor had call'd in another, I never had seen him before,
But he sent a chill to my heart when I saw him come in at the door, Fresh from the surgery-schools of France and of other lands—
Harsh red hair, big voice, big chest, big merciless hands !
Wonderful cures he had done, O yes, but they said too of him
He was happier using the knife than in trying to save the limb,
And that I can well believe, for he look'd so coarse and so red,
I could think he was one of those who would break their jests on the dead,

And mangle the living dog that had loved him and fawn'd at his knee—Drench'd with the hellish oorali—that ever such things should be !

II.

Here was a boy—I am sure that some of our children would die
 But for the voice of Love, and the smile, and the comforting eye—
 Here was a boy in the ward, every bone seem'd out of its place —
 Caught in a mill and crush'd—it was all but a hopeless case :
 And he handled him gently enough ; but his voice and his face were not kind,
 And it was but a hopeless case, he had seen it and made up his mind,
 And he said to me roughly ' The lad will need little more of your care.'
 ' All the more need,' I told him, ' to seek the Lord Jesus in prayer ;
 They are all his children here, and I pray for them all as my own :'
 But he turn'd to me, ' Ay, good woman, can prayer set a broken bone ?'
 Then he mutter'd half to himself, but I know that I heard him say
 ' All very well—but the good Lord Jesus has had his day.'

III.

Had? has it come? It has only dawn'd. It will come by and-by.
O how could I serve in the wards if the hope of the world were a lie?
How could I bear with the sights and the loath-some smells of disease
But that He said 'Ye do it to me, when ye do it to these'?

IV.

So he went. And we past to this ward where the younger children are laid :
Here is the cot of our orphan, our darling, our meek little maid ; Empty you see just now ! We have lost her who loved her so much—Patient of pain tho' as quick as a sensitive plant to the touch ;
Hers was the prettiest prattle, it often moved me to tears,
Hers was the gratefulest heart I have found in a child of her years — Nay you remember our Emmie ; you used to send her the flowers ;
How she would smile at 'em, play with 'em, talk to 'em hours after hours !
They that can wander at will where the works of the Lord are reveal'd

Little guess what joy can be got from a cowslip out of the field ; Flowers to these 'spirits in prison' are all they can know of the spring, They freshen and sweeten the wards like the waft of an Angel's wing ;
 And she lay with a flower in one hand and her thin hands crost on her breast—Wan, but as pretty as heart can desire, and we thought her at rest, Quietly sleeping—so quiet, our doctor said 'Poor little dear,
 Nurse, I must do it to-morrow ; she'll never live thro' it, I fear.'

V.

I walk'd with our kindly old Doctor as far as the head of the stair,
 Then I return'd to the ward ; the child didn't see
 I was there.

VI.

Never since I was nurse, had I been so grieved and so vext !
 Emmie had heard him. Softly she call'd from her cot to the next,
 'He says I shall never live thro' it, O Annie, what shall I do ?'
 Annie consider'd. 'If I,' said the wise little Annie, 'was you,

I should cry to the dear Lord Jesus to help me, for, Emmie, you see,
It's all in the picture there : " Little children should come to me."' (Meaning the print that you gave us, I find that it always can please
Our children, the dear Lord Jesus with children about his knees.)
'Yes, and I will,' said Emmie, ' but then if I call to the Lord,
How should he know that it's me ? such a lot of beds in the ward !'
That was a puzzle for Annie. Again she con-sider'd and said :
'Emmie, you put out your arms, and you leave
'em outside on the bed—
The Lord has so much to see to ! but, Emmie, you tell it him plain,
It's the little girl with her arms lying out on the counterpane.'

VII.

I had sat three nights by the child—I could not watch her for four—My brain had begun to reel—I felt I could do it no more.
That was my sleeping-night, but I thought that it never would pass.
There was a thunderclap once, and a clatter of hail on the glass,

And there was a phantom cry that I heard as I tost about,
The motherless bleat of a lamb in the storm and the darkness without ;
My sleep was broken besides with dreams of the dreadful knife
And fears for our delicate Emmie who scarce would escape with her life ; Then in the gray of the morning it seem'd she stood by me and smiled,
And the doctor came at his hour, and we went to see to the child.

VIII.

He had brought his ghastly tools : we believed her asleep again—
Her dear, long, lean, little arms lying out on the counterpane ;
Say that His day is done ! Ah why should we care what they say ?
The Lord of the children had heard her, and Emmie had past away.

DEDICATORY POEM TO THE PRINCESS ALICE.

DEAD Princess, living Power, if that, which lived

True life, live on—and if the fatal kiss, Born of true life and love, divorce thee not

From earthly love and life—if what we call
The spirit flash not all at once from out This shadow into Substance—then perhaps The mellow'd murmur of the people's praise
From thine own State, and all our breadth of realm, Where Love and Longing dress thy deeds in light, Ascends to thee ; and this March morn that sees Thy Soldier-brother's bridal orange-bloom Break thro' the yews and cypress of thy grave,
And thine Imperial mother smile again,
May send one ray to thee ! and who can tell—Thou—England's England-loving daughter—thou Dying so English thou wouldst have her flag

Borne on thy coffin—where is he can swear
But that some broken gleam from our poor earth
May touch thee, while remembering thee, I lay
At thy pale feet this ballad of the deeds Of England, and her banner in the East ?

THE DEFENCE OF LUCKNOW.

I.

BANNER of England, not for a season
O banner of Britain, hast thou Floated in conquering battle or flap to the battle-cry !
Never with mightier glory than when we had rear'd thee on high Flying at top of the roofs in the ghastly siege of Lucknow—Shot thro' the staff or the halyard, but ever we raised thee anew,
And ever upon the topmost roof our banner of England blew.

II.

Frail were the works that defended the hold that we held with our lives—Women and children among us, God help them our children and wives !

Hold it we might—and for fifteen days or for ‘ twenty at most.

‘Never surrender, I charge you, but every man die at his post!’

Voice of the dead whom we loved, our Lawrence the best of the brave :

Cold were his brows when we kiss’d him—we laid him that night in his grave.

‘Every man die at his post!’ and there hail’d on our houses and halls

Death from their rifle-bullets, and death from their cannon-balls,

Death in our innermost chamber, and death at our slight barricade,

Death while we stood with the musket, and death while we stoop to the spade,

Death to the dying, and wounds to the wounded, for often there fell

Striking the hospital wall, crashing thro’ it, their shot and their shell,

Death—for their spies were among us, their marksmen were told of our best,

So that the brute bullet broke thro’ the brain that could think for the rest ;

Bullets would sing by our foreheads, and bullets would rain at our feet—

Fire from ten thousand at once of the rebels that girdled us round—

Death at the glimpse of a finger from over the breadth of a street,

Death from the heights of the mosque and the palace, and death in the ground !
Mine ? yes, a mine ! Countermine ! down, down !
and creep thro' the hole !
Keep the revolver in hand ! you can hear him—the murderous mole !
Quiet, ah ! quiet—wait till the point of the pickaxe be thro' !
Click with the pick, coming nearer and nearer again than before—
Now let it speak, and you fire, and the dark pioneer is no more ;
And ever upon the topmost roof our banner of England blew !

III.

Ay, but the foe sprung his mine many times, and it chanced on a day Soon as the blast of that underground thunderclap echo'd away,
Dark thro' the smoke and the sulphur like so many fiends in their hell—Cannon-shot, musket-shot, volley on volley, and yell upon yell—
Fiercely on all the defences our myriad enemy fell.
What have they done ? where is it ? Out yonder.
Guard the Redan !
Storm at the Water-gate ! storm at the Bailey-gate ! storm, and it ran

Surging and swaying all round us, as ocean on every side Plunges and heaves at a bank that is daily drown'd by the tide—
So many thousands that if they be bold enough, who shall escape?
Kill or be kill'd, live or die, they shall know we are soldiers and men!
Ready! take aim at their leaders—their masses are gapp'd with our grape—Backward they reel like the wave, like the wave flinging forward again, Flying and foil'd at the last by the handful they could not subdue;
And ever upon the topmost roof our banner of England blew.

IV.

Handful of men as we were, we were English in heart and in limb, Strong with the strength of the race to command, to obey, to endure,
Each of us fought as if hope for the garrison hung but on him;
Still—could we watch at all points? we were every day fewer and fewer.
There was a whisper among us, but only a whisper that past:
'Children and wives—if the tigers leap into the fold unawares—

Every man die at his post—and the foe may out-live us at last—Better to fall by the hands that they love, than to fall into theirs !'
Roar upon roar in a moment two mines by the enemy sprung Clove into perilous chasms our walls and our poor palisades.
Rifleman, true is your heart, but be sure that your hand be as true !
Sharp is the fire of assault, better aimed are your flank fusillades—
Twice do we hurl them to earth from the ladders to which they had clung, Twice from the ditch where they shelter we drive them with hand-grenades ;
And ever upon the topmost roof our banner of England blew.

V.

Then on another wild morning another wild earthquake out-tore Clean from our lines of defence ten or twelve good paces or more.
Rifleman, high on the roof, hidden there from the light of the sun—
One has leapt up on the breach, crying out: ' Follow me, follow me !'— Mark him—he falls ! then another, and him too, and down goes he.

Had they been bold enough then, who can tell but the traitors had won ?
Boardings and rafters and doors—an embrasure !
make way for the gun !
Now double-charge it with grape ! It is charged and we fire, and they run.
Praise to our Indian brothers, and let the dark face have his due !
Thanks to the kindly dark faces who fought with us, faithful and few, Fought with the bravest among us, and drove them, and smote them, and slew, That ever upon the topmost roof our banner in India blew.

VI.

Men will forget what we suffer and not what we do. We can fight, But to be soldier all day and be sentinel all thro' the night—
Ever the mine and assault, our sallies, their lying alarms, Bugles and drums in the darkness, and shoutings and soundings to arms, Ever the labour of fifty that had to be done by five,
Ever the marvel among us that one should be left alive,
Ever the day with its traitorous death from the loopholes around,

Ever the night with its coffinless corpse to be laid in the ground,
 Heat like the mouth of a hell, or a deluge of cataract skies,
 Stench of old offal decaying, and infinite torment of flies,
 Thoughts of the breezes of May blowing over an English field, Cholera, scurvy, and fever, the wound that would not be heal'd, Lopping away of the limb by the pitiful-pitiless knife,— Torture and trouble in vain,—for it never could save us a life.
 Valour of delicate women who tended the hospital bed,
 Horror of women in travail among the dying and dead,
 Grief for our perishing children, and never a moment for grief,
 Toil and ineffable weariness, faltering hopes of relief, Havelock baffled, or beaten, or butcher'd for all that we knew—Then day and night, day and night, coming down on the still-shatter'd walls Millions of musket-bullets, and thousands of cannon-balls—
 But ever upon the topmost roof our banner of England blew.

VII.

Hark cannonade, fusillade ! is it true what was told by the scout, Outram and Havelock breaking their way through the fell mutineers ?
Surely the pibroch of Europe is ringing again in our ears !
All on a sudden the garrison utter a jubilant shout, Havelock's glorious Highlanders answer with conquering cheers,
Sick from the hospital echo them, women and children come out, Blessing the wholesome white faces of Havelock's good fusileers, Kissing the war-harden'd hand of the Highlander wet with their tears !
Dance to the pibroch !—saved ! we are saved !
is it you ? is it you ?
Saved by the valour of Havelock, saved by the blessing of Heaven !
'Held it for fifteen days !' we have held it for eighty-seven !
And ever aloft on the palace roof the old banner of England blew.

SIR JOHN OLDCASTLE, LORD
COBHAM.

(IN WALES.)

Y friend should meet me somewhere hereabout

To take me to that hiding in the hills.

I have broke their cage, no gilded one, I trow—

I read no more the prisoner's mute wail
Scribbled or carved upon the pitiless stone ;
I find hard rocks, hard life, hard cheer, or none,
For I am emptier than a friar's brains ;
But God is with me in this wilderness, These wet black passes and foam-churning chasms,—
And God's free air, and hope of better things.

I would I knew their speech ; not now to glean,
Not now—I hope to do it--some scatter'd ears,

Some ears for Christ in this wild field of Wales—But, bread, merely for bread. This tongue that wagg'd

They said with such heretical arrogance
 Against the proud archbishop Arundel—
 So much God's cause was fluent in it—is here
 But as a Latin Bible to the crowd ; 'Bara !'—what use? The Shepherd, when I speak,

Vailing a sullen eyelid with his hard
 'Dim Saesneg' passes, wroth at things of old—No fault of mine. Had he God's word in Welsh
 He might be kindlier : happily come the day !

Not least art thou, thou little Bethlehem
 In Judah, for in thee the Lord was born ;
 Nor thou in Britain, little Lutterworth,
 Least, for in thee the word was born again.

Heaven-sweet Evangel, ever-living word,
 Who whilome spakest to the South in Greek
 About the soft Mediterranean shores,
 And then in Latin to the Latin crowd, As good need was—thou hast come to talk our isle,

Hereafter thou, fulfilling Pentecost,
 Must learn to use the tongues of all the world.
 Yet art thou thine own witness that thou bringest
 Not peace, a sword, a fire.

What did he say,

My frightened Wiclif-preacher whom I crost
In flying hither? that one night a crowd
Throng'd the waste field about the city gates :
The king was on them suddenly with a host.
Why there? they came to hear their preacher.

Then

Some cried on Cobham, on the good Lord Cobham ;

Ay, for they love me ! but the king—nor voice
Nor finger raised against him—took and hang'd, Took, hang'd and burnt—how many—thirty-nine—

Call'd it rebellion—hang'd, poor friends, as rebels
And burn'd alive as heretics ! for your Priest Labels—to take the king along with him—
All heresy, treason : but to call men traitors
May make men traitors.

Rose of Lancaster,
Red in thy birth, redder with household war,
Now reddest with the blood of holy men,
Redder to be, red rose of Lancaster—
If somewhere in the North, as Rumour sang Fluttering the hawks of this crown-lusting line—
By firth and loch thy silver sister grow,¹
That were my rose, there my allegiance due.
Self-starved, they say—nay, murder'd, doubtless dead.

So to this king I cleaved : my friend was he, Once my fast friend : I would have given my life

To help his own from scathe, a thousand lives
 To save his soul. He might have come to learn Our Wiclif's learning : but the worldly Priests Who fear the king's hard common-sense should find What rotten piles uphold their masonwork, Urge him to foreign war. O had he will'd
 I might have stricken a lusty stroke for him,
 But he would not ; far lieber led my friend Back to the pure and universal church,
 But he would not : whether that heirless flaw
 In his throne's title make him feel so frail,
 He leans on Antichrist ; or that his mind,
 So quick, so capable in soldiership,
 In matters of the faith, alas the while !
 More worth than all the kingdoms of this world,
 Runs in the rut, a coward to the Priest.

Burnt—good Sir Roger Acton, my dear friend !
 Burnt too, my faithful preacher, Beverley !
 Lord give thou power to thy two witnesses !
 Lest the false faith make merry over them !
 Two—nay but thirty-nine have risen and stand,
 Dark with the smoke of human sacrifice,
 Before thy light, and cry continually—Cry—against whom ?

Him, who should bear the sword
 Of Justice—what ! the kingly, kindly boy ;
 Who took the world so easily heretofore,
 My boon companion, tavern-fellow—him
 Who gibed and japed—in many a merry tale

That shook our sides—at Pardoners, Summoners, Friars, absolution-sellers, monkeries
And nunneries, when the wild hour and the wine
Had set the wits aflame.

Harry of Monmouth,
Or Amurath of the East ?

Better to sink
Thy fleurs-de-lys in slime again, and fling Thy royalty back into the riotous fits
Of wine and harlotry—thy shame, and mine, Thy comrade—than to persecute the Lord,
And play the Saul that never will be Paul.

Burnt, burnt ! and while this mitred Arundel Dooms our unlicensed preacher to the flame,
The mitre-sanction'd harlot draws his clerks
Into the suburb—their hard celibacy, Sworn to be veriest ice of pureness, molten Into adulterous living, or such crimes
As holy Paul—a shame to speak of them—Among the heathen—

Sanctuary granted
To bandit, thief, assassin—yea to him
Who hacks his mother's throat—denied to him,
Who finds the Saviour in his mother tongue.
The Gospel, the Priest's pearl, flung down to swine—

The swine, lay-men, lay-women, who will come,
God willing, to outlearn the filthy friar.
Ah rather, Lord, than that thy Gospel, meant

To course and range thro' all the world, should be Tether'd to these dead pillars of the Church—
 Rather than so, if thou wilt have it so,
 Burst vein, snap sinew, and crack heart, and life Pass in the fire of Babylon ! but how long, O Lord, how long !

My friend should meet me here.

Here is the copse, the fountain and—a Cross !
 To thee, dead wood, I bow not head nor knees.
 Rather to thee, green boscafe, work of God,
 Black holly, and white-flower'd wayfaring-tree !
 Rather to thee, thou living water, drawn
 By this good Wiclif mountain down from heaven,
 And speaking clearly in thy native tongue—
 No Latin—He that thirsteth, come and drink !

Eh ! how I anger'd Arundel asking me To worship Holy Cross ! I spread mine arms, God's work, I said, a cross of flesh and blood And holier. That was heresy. (My good friend By this time should be with me.) 'Images ?'
 'Bury them as God's truer images
 Are daily buried.' 'Heresy.—Penance ?' 'Fast, Hairshirt and scourge—nay, let a man repent,
 Do penance in his heart, God hears him.'

'Heresy—
 Not shriven, not saved ?' 'What profits an ill
 Priest

Between me and my God ? I would not spurn Good counsel of good friends, but shrive myself

No, not to an Apostle.' 'Heresy.'
(My friend is long in coming.) 'Pilgrimages?'
'Drink, bagpipes, revelling, devil's-dances, vice.
The poor man's money gone to fat the friar.
Who reads of begging saints in Scripture?'—
'Heresy'—

(Hath he been here—not found me—gone again?
Have I mislearnt our place of meeting?) 'Bread—Bread left after the blessing?' how they stared,
That was their main test-question—glared at me!
'He veil'd Himself in flesh, and now He veils
His flesh in bread, body and bread together.'
Then rose the howl of all the cassock'd wolves, 'No bread, no bread. God's body!' Archbishop, Bishop,
Priors, Canons, Friars, bellringers, Parish-clerks—
'No bread, no bread!'—'Authority of the Church, Power of the keys!'—Then I, God help me, I So mock'd, so spurn'd, so baited two whole days—
I lost myself and fell from evenness,
And rail'd at all the Popes, that ever since Sylvester shed the venom of world-wealth
Into the church, had only prov'n themselves Poisoners, murderers. Well—God pardon all—Me, them, and all the world—yea, that proud
Priest,
That mock-meek mouth of utter Antichrist,
That traitor to King Richard and the truth,
Who rose and doom'd me to the fire.

Amen !

Nay, I can burn, so that the Lord of life
Be by me in my death.

Those three ! the fourth

Was like the son of God. Not burnt were they.
On them the smell of burning had not past.
That was a miracle to convert the king.
These Pharisees, this Caiaphas-Arundel
What miracle could turn? He here again,
He thwarting their traditions of Himself,
He would be found a heretic to Himself,
And doom'd to burn alive.

So, caught, I burn.

Burn? heathen men have borne as much as this,
For freedom, or the sake of those they loved,
Or some less cause, some cause far less than mine;
For every other cause is less than mine.
The moth will singe her wings, and singed return,
Her love of light quenching her fear of pain--- How now, my soul, we do not heed the fire?
Faint-hearted? tut!--faint-stomach'd! faint as I am,
God willing, I will burn for Him.

Who comes?

A thousand marks are set upon my head.
Friend?—foe perhaps—a tussle for it then!
Nay, but my friend. Thou art so well disguised, I knew thee not. Hast thou brought bread with thee?

I have not broken bread for fifty hours.
None? I am damn'd already by the Priest

SIR JOHN OLDCASTLE, LORD COEHAM. 141

For holding there was bread where bread was none—

No bread. My friends await me yonder? Yes.
Lead on then. Up the mountain? Is it far?
Not far. Climb first and reach me down thy hand.
I am not like to die for lack of bread,
For I must live to testify by fire.¹

¹ He was burnt on Christmas Day, 1417.

COLUMBUS.

HAINS, my good lord : in your raised brows I read
Some wonder at our chamber ornaments.

We brought this iron from our isles of gold.

Does the king know you deign to visit him Whom once he rose from off his throne to greet Before his people, like his brother king?
I saw your face that morning in the crowd.

At Barcelona —tho' you were not then So bearded. Yes. The city deck'd herself
To meet me, roar'd my name ; the king, the queen Bad me be seated, speak, and tell them all
The story of my voyage, and while I spoke The crowd's roar fell as at the ' Peace, be still ! '
And when I ceased to speak, the king, the queen, Sank from their thrones, and melted into tears,
And knelt, and lifted hand and heart and voice

In praise to God who led me thro' the waste.
And then the great 'Laudamus' rose to heaven.

Chains for the Admiral of the Ocean ! chains
For him who gave a new heaven, a new earth,
As holy John had prophesied of me,
Gave glory and more empire to the kings
Of Spain than all their battles ! chains for him Who push'd his prows into the setting sun,
And made West East, and sail'd the Dragon's mouth,
And came upon the Mountain of the World,
And saw the rivers roll from Paradise !

Chains ! we are Admirals of the Ocean, we,
We and our sons for ever. Ferdinand Hath sign'd it and our Holy Catholic queen—Of the Ocean—of the Indies—Admirals we—Our title, which we never mean to yield,
Our guerdon not alone for what we did,
But our amends for all we might have done—
The vast occasion of our stronger life—
Eighteen long years of waste, seven in your Spain, Lost, showing courts and kings a truth the babe
Will suck in with his milk hereafter—earth
A sphere.

Were you at Salamanca ? No.
We fronted there the learning of all Spain,
All their cosmogonies, their astronomies :

Guess-work they guess'd it, but the golden guess Is morning-star to the full round of truth.
No guess-work ! I was certain of my goal ;
Some thought it heresy, but that would not hold.
King David call'd the heavens a hide, a tent Spread over earth, and so this earth was flat :
Some cited old Lactantius : could it be That trees grew downward, rain fell upward, men Walk'd like the fly on ceilings ? and besides,
The great Augustine wrote that none could breathe Within the zone of heat ; so might there be Two Adams, two mankinds, and that was clean Against God's word : thus was I beaten back,
And chiefly to my sorrow by the Church,
And thought to turn my face from Spain, appeal
Once more to France or England ; but our Queen Recall'd me, for at last their Highnesses
Were half-assured this earth might be a sphere.

All glory to the all-blessed Trinity,
All glory to the mother of our Lord,
And Holy Church, from whom I never swerved
Not even by one hair's-breadth of heresy,
I have accomplish'd what I came to do.

Not yet— not all—last night a dream—I sail'd
On my first voyage, harass'd by the frights
Of my first crew, their curses and their groans.
The great flame-banner borne by Teneriffe,
The compass, like an old friend false at last

In our most need, appall'd them, and the wind Still westward, and the weedy seas—at length
The landbird, and the branch with berries on it,
The carven staff—and last the light, the light
On Guanahani ! but I changed the name ;
San Salvador I call'd it ; and the light Grew as I gazed, and brought out a broad sky
Of dawning over—not those alien palms,
The marvel of that fair new nature—not That Indian isle, but our most ancient East Moriah with Jerusalem ; and I saw
The glory of the Lord flash up, and beat Thro' all the homely town from jasper, sapphire, Chalcedony, emerald, sardonyx, sardius, Chrysolite, beryl, topaz, chrysoprase, Jacynth, and amethyst—and those twelve gates, Pearl—and I woke, and thought—death— I shall die—

I am written in the Lamb's own Book of Life
To walk within the glory of the Lord Sunless and moonless, utter light—but no !
The Lord had sent this bright, strange dream to me To mind me of the secret vow I made When Spain was waging war against the Moor—
I strove myself with Spain against the Moor.
There came two voices from the Sepulchre,
Two friars crying that if Spain should oust
The Moslem from her limit, he, the fierce Soldan of Egypt, would break down and raze
The blessed tomb of Christ ; whereon I vow'd

That, if our Princes harken'd to my prayer, Whatever wealth I brought from that new world Should, in this old, be consecrate to lead
A new crusade against the Saracen,
And free the Holy Sepulchre from thrall.

Gold? I had brought your Princes gold enough
If left alone! Being but a Genovese,
I am handled worse than had I been a Moor,
And breach'd the belting wall of Cambalu,
And given the Great Khan's palaces to the Moor,
Or clutch'd the sacred crown of Prester John,
And cast it to the Moor: but had I brought From Solomon's now-recover'd Ophir all
The gold that Solomon's navies carried home, Would that have gilded me? Blue blood of Spain, Tho' quartering your own royal arms of Spain,
I have not: blue blood and black blood of Spain,
The noble and the convict of Castile, Howl'd me from Hispaniola: for you know
The flies at home, that ever swarm about,
And cloud the highest heads, and murmur down Truth in the distance—these outbuzz'd me so That even our prudent king, our righteous queen—
I pray'd them being so calumniated
They would commission one of weight and worth
To judge between my slander'd self and me—Fonseca my main enemy at their court,
They sent me out his tool, Bovadilla, one
As ignorant and impolitic as a beast—

Blockish irreverence, brainless greed—who sack'd
 My dwelling, seized upon my papers, loosed
 My captives, feed the rebels of the crown, Sold the crown-farms for all but nothing, gave All but free leave for all to work the mines, Drove me and my good brothers home in chains,
 And gathering ruthless gold—a single piece Weigh'd nigh four thousand Castillanos—so They tell me—weigh'd him down into the abysm—
 The hurricane of the latitude on him fell,
 The seas of our discovering over-roll
 Him and his gold ; the frailer caravel,
 With what was mine, came happily to the shore.
There was a glimmering of God's hand.

And God

Hath more than glimmer'd on me. O my lord, I swear to you I heard his voice between The thunders in the black Veragua nights,
 'O soul of little faith, slow to believe !
 Have I not been about thee from thy birth ?
 Given thee the keys of the great Ocean-sea ?
 Set thee in light till time shall be no more ?
 Is it I who have deceived thee or the world ?
 Endure ! thou hast done so well for men, that men Cry out against thee : was it otherwise With mine own Son ? '

And more than once in days
 Of doubt and cloud and storm, when drowning
 hope

Sank all but out of sight, I heard his voice, ‘Be not cast down. I lead thee by the hand, Fear not.’ And I shall hear his voice again—
I know that he has led me all my life, I am not yet too old to work his will—
His voice again.

Still for all that, my lord,
I lying here bedridden and alone,
Cast off, put by, scouted by court and king--
The first discoverer starves—his followers, all Flower into fortune—our world’s way—and I,
Without a roof that I can call mine own,
With scarce a coin to buy a meal withal,
And seeing what a door for scoundrel scum
I open’d to the West, thro’ which the lust, Villany, violence, avarice, of your Spain
Pour’d in on all those happy naked isles—
Their kindly native princes slain or slaved,
Their wives and children Spanish concubines,
Their innocent hospitalities quench’d in blood,
Some dead of hunger, some beneath the scourge,
Some over-labour’d, some by their own hands,— Yea, the dear mothers, crazing Nature, kill Their babies at the breast for hate of Spain—
Ah God, the harmless people whom we found In Hispaniola’s island-Paradise !
Who took us for the very Gods from Heaven,
And we have sent them very fiends from Hell ;
And I myself, myself not blameless, I Could sometimes wish I had never led the way.

Only the ghost of our great Catholic Queen Smiles on me, saying, 'Be thou comforted !
This creedless people will be brought to Christ
And own the holy governance of Rome.'

But who could dream that we, who bore the Cross
Thither, were excommunicated there,
For curbing crimes that scandalised the Cross,
By him, the Catalonian Minorite, Rome's Vicar in our Indies? who believe These hard memorials of our truth to Spain Clung closer to us for a longer term
Than any friend of ours at Court? and yet Pardon—too harsh, unjust. I am rack'd with pains.

You see that I have hung them by my bed,
And I will have them buried in my grave.

Sir, in that flight of ages which are God's Own voice to justify the dead—perchance Spain once the most chivalric race on earth, Spain then the mightiest, wealthiest realm on earth,
So made by me, may seek to unbury me,
To lay me in some shrine of this old Spain,
Or in that vaster Spain I leave to Spain.
Then some one standing by my grave will say,
'Behold the bones of Christopher Colòn'—
'Ay, but the chains, what do they mean—the chains?'

I sorrow for that kindly child of Spain
Who then will have to answer, ' These same chains Bound these same bones back thro' the Atlantic sea,
Which he unchain'd for all the world to come.'

O Queen of Heaven who seest the souls in Hell
And purgatory, I suffer all as much As they do—for the moment. Stay, my son Is here anon : my son will speak for me
Ablier than I can in these spasms that grind Bone against bone. You will not. One last word.

You move about the Court, I pray you tell King Ferdinand who plays with me, that one, Whose life has been no play with him and his Hidalgos—shipwrecks, famines, fevers, fights, Mutinies, treacheries—wink'd at, and condoned—
That I am loyal to him till the death,
And ready—tho' our Holy Catholic Queen, Who fain had pledged her jewels on my first voyage,
Whose hope was mine to spread the Catholic faith,
Who wept with me when I return'd in chains,
Who sits beside the blessed Virgin now,
To whom I send my prayer by night and day—
She is gone—but you will tell the King, that I, Rack'd as I am with gout, and wrench'd with pains Gain'd in the service of His Highness, yet Am ready to sail forth on one last voyage,
And readier, if the King would hear, to lead

One last crusade against the Saracen,
And save the Holy Sepulchre from thrall.

Going? I am old and slighted : you have dared Somewhat perhaps in coming? my poor thanks !
I am but an alien and a Genovese.

THE VOYAGE OF MAELDUNE.

(FOUNDED ON AN IRISH LEGEND. A.D. 700.)

I.

WAS the chief of the race—he had stricken my father dead—
But I gather'd my fellows together, I swore I would strike off his head.
Each of them look'd like a king, and was noble in birth as in worth, And each of them boasted he sprang from the oldest race upon earth.
Each was as brave in the fight as the bravest hero of song,
And each of them liefer had died than have done one another a wrong.
He lived on an isle in the ocean—we sail'd on a Friday morn—
He that had slain my father the day before I was born.

THE VOYAGE OF MAELDUNE.

II.

And we came to the isle in the ocean, and there on the shore was he.
But a sudden blast blew us out and away thro' a boundless sea.

III.

And we came to the Silent Isle that we never had touch'd at before,
Where a silent ocean always broke on a silent shore,
And the brooks glitter'd on in the light without sound, and the long waterfalls Pour'd in a thunderless plunge to the base of the mountain walls,
And the poplar and cypress unshaken by storm flourish'd up beyond sight,
And the pine shot aloft from the crag to an unbelievable height,
And high in the heaven above it there flicker'd a songless lark,
And the cock couldn't crow, and the bull couldn't low, and the dog couldn't bark.
And round it we went, and thro' it, but never a murmur, a breath—
It was all of it fair as life, it was all of it quiet as death,
And we hated the beautiful Isle, for whenever we strove to speak

Our voices were thinner and fainter than any flittermouse-shriek ;
And the men that were mighty of tongue and could raise such a battle-cry That a hundred who heard it would rush on a thousand lances and die—
O they to be dumb'd by the charm !—so fluster'd with anger were they They almost fell on each other ; but after we sail'd away.

IV.

And we came to the Isle of Shouting, we landed, a score of wild birds Cried from the topmost summit with human voices and words ;
Once in an hour they cried, and whenever their voices peal'd
The steer fell down at the plow and the harvest died from the field, And the men dropt dead in the valleys and half of the cattle went lame, And the roof sank in on the hearth, and the dwelling broke into flame ;
And the shouting of these wild birds ran into the hearts of my crew, Till they shouted along with the shouting and seized one another and slew ;
But I drew them the one from the other ; I saw that we could not stay,

And we left the dead to the birds and we sail'd with our wounded away.

V.

And we came to the Isle of Flowers : their breath met us out on the seas, For the Spring and the middle Summer sat each on the lap of the breeze ;
And the red passion-flower to the cliffs, and the dark blue clematis, clung,
And starr'd with a myriad blossom the long con-volvulus hung ;
And the topmost spire of the mountain was lilies in lieu of snow,
And the lilies like glaciers winded down, running out below
Thro' the fire of the tulip and poppy, the blaze of gorse, and the blush Of millions of roses that sprang without leaf or a thorn from the bush ;
And the whole isle-side flashing down from the peak without ever a tree Swept like a torrent of gems from the sky to the blue of the sea ;
And we roll'd upon capes of crocus and vaunted our kith and our kin,
And we wallow'd in beds of lilies, and chanted the triumph of Finn, Till each like a golden image was pollen'd from head to feet

And each was as dry as a cricket, with thirst in the middle-day heat.

Blossom and blossom, and promise of blossom, but never a fruit !

And we hated the Flowering Isle, as we hated the isle that was mute,

And we tore up the flowers by the million and flung them in bight and bay,

And we left but a naked rock, and in anger we sail'd away.

VI.

And we came to the Isle of Fruits : all round from the cliffs and the capes,

Purple or amber, dangled a hundred fathom of grapes,

And the warm melon lay like a little sun on the tawny sand,

And the fig ran up from the beach and rioted over the land,

And the mountain arose like a jewell'd throne thro' the fragrant air,

Glowing with all-colour'd plums and with golden masses of pear,

And the crimson and scarlet of berries that flamed upon bine and vine,

But in every berry and fruit was the poisonous pleasure of wine ;

And the peak of the mountain was apples, the hugest that ever were seen,

And they prest, as they grew, on each other, with hardly a leaflet between,
And all of them redder than rosiest health or than utterest shame,
And setting, when Even descended, the very sunset aflame ;
And we stay'd three days, and we gorged and we madden'd, till every one drew His sword on his fellow to slay him, and ever they struck and they slew ;
And myself, I had eaten but sparely, and fought till I sunder'd the fray, Then I bad them remember my father's death, and we sail'd away.

VII.

And we came to the Isle of Fire : we were lured by the light from afar,
For the peak sent up one league of fire to the Northern Star ;
Lured by the glare and the blare, but scarcely could stand upright,
For the whole isle shudder'd and shook like a man in a mortal affright ;
We were giddy besides with the fruits we had gorged, and so crazed that at last There were some leap'd into the fire ; and away we sail'd, and we past Over that undersea isle, where the water is clearer than air :

Down we look'd : what a garden ! O bliss, what a Paradise there !
 Towers of a happier time, low down in a rainbow deep
 Silent palaces, quiet fields of eternal sleep !
 And three of the gentlest and best of my people, whate'er I could say, Plunged head down in the sea, and the Paradise trembled away.

VIII.

And we came to the Bounteous Isle, where the heavens lean low on the land, And ever at dawn from the cloud glitter'd o'er us a sunbright hand,
 Then it open'd and dropt at the side of each man, as he rose from his rest, Bread enough for his need till the labourless day dipt under the West ;
 And we wander'd about it and thro' it. O never was time so good !
 And we sang of the triumphs of Finn, and the boast of our ancient blood, And we gazed at the wandering wave as we sat by the gurgle of springs, And we chanted the songs of the Bards and the glories of fairy kings ;
 But at length we began to be weary, to sigh, and to stretch and yawn,

Till we hated the Bounteous Isle and the sun-bright hand of the dawn, For there was not an enemy near, but the whole green Isle was our own,
And we took to playing at ball, and we took to throwing the stone,
And we took to playing at battle, but that was a perilous play,
For the passion of battle was in us, we slew and we sail'd away.

IX.

And we came to the Isle of Witches and heard their musical cry—
'Come to us, O come, come' in the stormy red of a sky
Dashing the fires and the shadows of dawn on the beautiful shapes,
For a wild witch naked as heaven stood on each of the loftiest capes,
And a hundred ranged on the rock like white sea-birds in a row,
And a hundred gamboll'd and pranced on the wrecks in the sand below,
And a hundred splash'd from the ledges, and bosom'd the burst of the spray, But I knew we should fall on each other, and hastily sail'd away.

X.

And we came in an evil time to the Isle of the Double Towers,
One was of smooth-cut stone, one carved all over with flowers,
But an earthquake always moved in the hollows under the dells,
And they shock'd on each other and butted each other with clashing of bells, And the daws flew out of the Towers and jangled and wrangled in vain,
And the clash and boom of the bells rang into the heart and the brain, Till the passion of battle was on us, and all took sides with the Towers,
There were some for the clean-cut stone, there were more for the carven flowers, And the wrathful thunder of God peal'd over us all the day,
For the one half slew the other, and after we sail'd away.

XI.

And we came to the Isle of a Saint who had sail'd with St. Brendan of yore, He had lived ever since on the Isle and his winters were fifteen score, And his voice was low as from other worlds, and his eyes were sweet,

And his white hair sank to his heels and his white beard fell to his feet,
And he spake to me, 'O Maeldune, let be this purpose of thine !
Remember the words of the Lord when he told us "Vengeance is mine !"
His fathers have slain thy fathers in war or in single strife,
Thy fathers have slain his fathers, each taken a life for a life, Thy father had slain his father, how long shall the murder last ?
Go back to the Isle of Finn and suffer the Past to be Past.'
And we kiss'd the fringe of his beard and we pray'd as we heard him pray,
And the Holy man he assoil'd us, and sadly we sail'd away.

XII.

And we came to the Isle we were blown from, and there on the shore was he,
The man that had slain my father. I saw him and let him be.
O weary was I of the travel, the trouble, the strife and the sin,
When I landed again, with a tithe of my men, on the Isle of Finn.

DE PROFUNDIS.

THE TWO GREETINGS.

I.

OUT of the deep, my child, out of the deep,
Where all that was to be, in all that was,

Whirl'd for a million æons thro' the vast Waste dawn of multitudinous-eddy light—
Out of the deep, my child, out of the deep,
Thro' all this changing world of changeless law,
And every phase of ever-heightening life,
And nine long months of antenatal gloom,
With this last moon, this crescent—her dark orb Touch'd with earth's light—thou comest, darling boy ;

Our own ; a babe in lineament and limb
Perfect, and prophet of the perfect man ; Whose face and form are hers and mine in one,
Indissolubly married like our love ;

Live, and be happy in thyself, and serve
This mortal race thy kin so well, that men May bless thee as we bless thee, O young life Breaking with laughter from the dark ; and may The fated channel where thy motion lives
Be prosperously shaped, and sway thy course
Along the years of haste and random youth Unshatter'd ; then full-current thro' full man ;
And last in kindly curves, with gentlest fall,
By quiet fields, a slowly-dying power,
To that last deep where we and thou are still.

II.

OUT of the deep, my child, out of the deep,
From that great deep, before our world begins, Whereon the Spirit of God moves as he will—
Out of the deep, my child, out of the deep,
From that true world within the world we see,
Whereof our world is but the bounding shore—
Out of the deep, Spirit, out of the deep,
With this ninth moon, that sends the hidden sur
Down yon dark sea, thou comest, darling boy.

II.

For in the world, which is not ours, They said
' Let us make man ' and that which should be man, From that one light no man can look upon,

Drew to this shore lit by the suns and moons
And all the shadows. O dear Spirit half-lost
In thine own shadow and this fleshly sign That thou art thou—who wailest being born
And banish'd into mystery, and the pain
Of this divisible-indivisible world, Among the numerable-innumerable Sun, sun, and sun, thro' finite-infinite space
In finite-infinite Time—our mortal veil
And shatter'd phantom of that infinite One,
Who made thee unconceivably Thyself
Out of his whole World-self and all in all Live thou ! and of the grain and husk, the grape And ivyberry, choose ; and still depart From death to death thro' life and life, and find Nearer and ever nearer Him, who wrought
Not Matter, nor the finite-infinite,
But this main-miracle, that thou art thou,
With power on thine own act and on the world.

THE HUMAN CRY.

I.

ALLOWED be Thy name—Halleluiah !—

Infinite Ideality !

Immeasurable Reality !

Infinite Personality !

Hallowed be Thy name—Halleluiah !

II.

We feel we are nothing—for all is Thou and in Thee ;

We feel we are something—that also has come from Thee ;

We know we are nothing—but Thou wilt help us to be.

Hallowed be Thy name—Halleluiah !

PREFATORY SONNET

TO THE 'NINETEENTH CENTURY.'

THOSE that of late had fled far and fast

To touch all shores, now leaving to the skill

Of others their old craft seaworthy still,
Have charter'd this ; where, mindful of the past,
Our true co-mates regather round the mast ;
Of diverse tongue, but with a common will Here, in this roaring moon of daffodil
And crocus, to put forth and brave the blast ;
For some, descending from the sacred peak
Of hoar high-templed Faith, have leagued again Their lot with ours to rove the world about ;
And some are wilder comrades, sworn to seek If any golden harbour be for men
In seas of Death and sunless gulfs of Doubt.

TO THE REV. W. H. BROOKFIELD.

BROOKS, for they call'd you so that knew you best,
Old Brooks, who loved so well to mouth my rhymes,
How oft we two have heard St. Mary's chimes !
How oft the Cantab supper, host and guest,
Would echo helpless laughter to your jest !
How oft with him we paced that walk of limes,
Him, the lost light of those dawn-golden times,
Who loved you well ! Now both are gone to rest.
Yon man of humourous melancholy mark,
Dead of some inward agony—is it so ?
Our kindlier, trustier Jaques, past away !
I cannot laud this life, it looks so dark :
Σκιάς ὄναρ—dream of a shadow, go—
God bless you. I shall join you in a day.

MONTENEGRO.

THEY rose to where their sovran eagle sails,

They kept their faith, their freedom, on the height,

Chaste, frugal, savage, arm'd by day and night Against the Turk ; whose inroad nowhere scales
Their headlong passes, but his footstep fails,
And red with blood the Crescent reels from fight Before their dauntless hundreds, in prone fight
By thousands down the crags and thro' the vales.
O smallest among peoples ! rough rock-throne
Of Freedom ! warriors beating back the swarm
Of Turkish Islam for five hundred years,
Great Tsernogora ! never since thine own Black ridges drew the cloud and brake the storm Has breathed a race of mightier mountaineers.

TO VICTOR HUGO.

VICTOR in Drama, Victor in Romance.
Cloud-weaver of phantasmal hopes and fears, French of the French, and Lord of human tears ;
Child-lover ; Bard whose fame-lit laurels glance
Darkening the wreaths of all that would advance, Beyond our strait, their claim to be thy peers ;
Weird Titan by thy winter weight of years
As yet unbroken, Stormy voice of France !
Who dost not love our England — so they say ;
I know not — England, France, all man to be Will make one people ere man's race be run :
And I, desiring that diviner day,
Yield thee full thanks for thy full courtesy
To younger England in the boy my son.

TRANSLATIONS, ETC.

BATTLE OF BRUNANBURH.

Constantinus, King of the Scots, after having sworn allegiance to Athelstan, allied himself with the Danes of Ireland under Anlaf, and invading England, was defeated by Athelstan and his brother Edmund with great slaughter at Brunanburh in the year 937.

I.

ATHELSTAN King,
Lord among Earls,
Bracelet-bestower and Baron of Barons,

He with his brother,
Edmund Atheling,
Gaining a lifelong Glory in battle,
Slew with the sword-edge
There by Brunanburh, Brake the shield-wall,

¹ I have more or less availed myself of my son's prose translation of this poem in the Contemporary Review (November 1876).

Hew'd the lindenwood,¹ Hack'd the battleshield,
Sons of Edward with hammer'd brands.

II.

Theirs was a greatness
Got from their Grandsires — Theirs that so often in Strife with their enemies Struck for their hoards and their hearths and their homes.

III.

Bow'd the spoiler,
Bent the Scotsman,
Fell the shipcrews
Doom'd to the death.
All the field with blood of the fighters Flow'd, from when first the great Sun-star of morningtide, Lamp of the Lord God
Lord everlasting,
Glode over earth till the glorious creature Sunk to his setting.

IV.

There lay many a man
Marr'd by the javelin,
Men of the Northland

Shot over shield.
There was the Scotsman
Weary of war.

V.

We the West-Saxons,
Long as the daylight
Lasted, in companies
Troubled the track of the host that we hated, Grimly with swords that were sharp from the grindstone,
Fiercely we hack'd at the flyers before us.

VI.

Mighty the Mercian,
Hard was his hand-play, Sparing not any of Those that with Anlaf, Warriors over the Weltering waters
Borne in the bark's-bosom,
Drew to this island,
Doom'd to the death.

VII.

Five young kings put asleep by the sword-stroke, Seven strong Earls of the army of Anlaf Fell on the war-field, numberless numbers, Shipmen and Scotsmen.

VIII.

Then the Norse leader,
Dire was his need of it,
Few were his following,
Fled to his warship :
Fleeted his vessel to sea with the king in it,
Saving his life on the fallow flood.

IX.

Also the crafty one,
Constantinus,
Crept to his North again,
Hoar-headed hero !

Slender reason had
He to be proud of The welcome of war-knives-- He that was reft of his Folk and his friends that had Fallen in conflict,
Leaving his son too
Lost in the carnage, Mangled to morsels,
A youngster in war !

XI.

Slender reason had
He to be glad of
The clash of the war-glaive—

Traitor and trickster
And spurner of treaties —
He nor had Anlaf
With armies so broken
A reason for bragging
That they had the better
In perils of battle
On places of slaughter—
The struggle of standards,
The rush of the javelins,
The crash of the charges,¹
The wielding of weapons—
The play that they play'd with The children of Edward.

XII.

Then with their nail'd prows Parted the Norsemen, a Blood-redden'd relic of Javelins over
The jarring breaker, the deepsea billow, Shaping their way toward Dyflen² again, Shamed in their souls.

XIII.

Also the brethren,
King and Atheling,
Each in his glory,
Went to his own in his own West-Saxonland, Glad of the war.

XIV.

Many a carcase they left to be carrion,
Many a livid one, many a sallow-skin—Left for the white-tail'd eagle to tear it, and Left for the horny-nibb'd raven to rend it, and Gave to the garbaging war-hawk to gorge it, and That gray beast, the wolf of the weald.

XV.

Never had huger
Slaughter of heroes
Slain by the sword-edge—
Such as old writers
Have writ of in histories—Hapt in this isle, since
Up from the East hither Saxon and Angle from Over the broad billow Broke into Britain with Haughty war-workers who Harried the Welshman, when Earls that were lured by the Hunger of glory gat
Hold of the land.

ACHILLES OVER THE TRENCH.

ILIAD, xviii. 202.

O saying, light-foot Iris pass'd away.
Then rose Achilles dear to Zeus; and round
The warrior's puissant shoulders Pallas flung
Her fringed ægis, and around his head
The glorious goddess wreath'd a golden cloud,
And from it lighted an all-shining flame.
As when a smoke from a city goes to heaven
Far off from out an island girt by foes,
All day the men contend in grievous war
From their own city, but with set of sun
Their fires flame thickly, and aloft the glare Flies streaming, if perchance the neighbours round
May see, and sail to help them in the war;
So from his head the splendour went to heaven.
From wall to dyke he stept, he stood, nor join'd
The Achæans—honouring his wise mother's word—

There standing, shouted, and Pallas far away Call'd ; and a boundless panic shook the foe.
For like the clear voice when a trumpet shrills, Blown by the fierce beleaguers of a town,
So rang the clear voice of Æakidês ;
And when the brazen cry of Æakidês
Was heard among the Trojans, all their hearts
Were troubled, and the full-maned horses whirl'd
The chariots backward, knowing griefs at hand ;
And sheer-astounded were the charioteers
To see the dread, unweariable fire
That always o'er the great Peleion's head Burn'd, for the bright-eyed goddess made it burn Thrice from the dyke he sent his mighty shout, Thrice backward reel'd the Trojans and allies ;
And there and then twelve of their noblest died
Among their spears and chariots.

TO THE PRINCESS FREDERICA ON HER MARRIAGE.

YOU that were eyes and light to the King till he past away
From the darkness of life—
He saw not his daughter—he blest her : the blind King sees you to-day,
He blesses the wife.

SIR JOHN FRANKLIN.

ON THE CENOTAPH IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY.

OT here ! the white North has thy bones;
and thou,
Heroic sailor-soul,
Art passing on thine happier voyage
now
Toward no earthly pole.

TO DANTE.

(WRITTEN AT REQUEST OF THE FLORENTINES.)

ING, that hast reign'd six hundred years, and grown
In power, and ever growest, since thine own

Fair Florence honouring thy nativity, Thy Florence now the crown of Italy,
Hath sought the tribute of a verse from me,
I, wearing but the garland of a day,
Cast at thy feet one flower that fades away.
